Journal Of Atmospheric Chemistry:

Journal of Atmospheric Chemistry , The Future of Atmospheric Chemistry Research National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Committee on the Future of Atmospheric Chemistry Research, 2017-01-29 Our world is changing at an accelerating rate The global human population has grown from 6.1 billion to 7.1 billion in the last 15 years and is projected to reach 11.2 billion by the end of the century The distribution of humans across the globe has also shifted with more than 50 percent of the global population now living in urban areas compared to 29 percent in 1950 Along with these trends increasing energy demands expanding industrial activities and intensification of agricultural activities worldwide have in turn led to changes in emissions that have altered the composition of the atmosphere These changes have led to major challenges for society including deleterious impacts on climate human and ecosystem health Climate change is one of the greatest environmental challenges facing society today Air pollution is a major threat to human health as one out of eight deaths globally is caused by air pollution And future food production and global food security are vulnerable to both global change and air pollution Atmospheric chemistry research is a key part of understanding and responding to these challenges The Future of Atmospheric Chemistry Research Remembering Yesterday Understanding Today Anticipating Tomorrow summarizes the rationale and need for supporting a comprehensive U S research program in atmospheric chemistry comments on the broad trends in laboratory field satellite and modeling studies of atmospheric chemistry determines the priority areas of research for advancing the basic science of atmospheric chemistry and identifies the highest priority needs for improvements in the research infrastructure to address those priority research topics This report describes the scientific advances over the past decade in six core areas of atmospheric chemistry emissions chemical transformation oxidants atmospheric dynamics and circulation aerosol particles and clouds and biogeochemical cycles and deposition This material was developed for the NSF s Atmospheric Chemistry Program however the findings will be of interest to other agencies and programs that support atmospheric chemistry research

Volatile Organic Compounds in the Atmosphere Ralf Koppmann, 2008-04-15 Every day large quantities of volatile organic compounds VOCs are emitted into the atmosphere from both anthropogenic and natural sources The formation of gaseous and particulate secondary products caused by oxidation of VOCs is one of the largest unknowns in the quantitative prediction of the earth's climate on a regional and global scale and on the understanding of local air quality To be able to model and control their impact it is essential to understand the sources of VOCs their distribution in the atmosphere and the chemical transformations which remove these compounds from the atmosphere In recent years techniques for the analysis of organic compounds in the atmosphere have been developed to increase the spectrum of detectable compounds and their detection limits New methods have been introduced to increase the time resolution of those measurements and to resolve more complex mixtures of organic compounds Volatile Organic Compounds in the Atmosphere describes the current state of knowledge of the chemistry of VOCs as well as the methods and techniques to analyse gaseous and particulate organic compounds in the atmosphere The aim is to provide an authoritative review to address the needs of both graduate students and active researchers in the field of atmospheric chemistry research
