Consequently, there is a growing demand for training in emergent skills to solve problems of different natures: distributive leadership, competencies, empathy, ability to control emotions, etc. In this sense, one of the challenges that educators of all different educational levels and training contexts have to face is to foster these skills in their courses. The Handbook of Research on Using Disruptive Methodologies and Game-Based Learning to Foster Transversal Skills gathers knowledge, skills, abilities, and capabilities on innovative and disruptive methodologies that can be applied in all educational levels to foster transversal skills. This publication contains different contributions focused on the description of innovative educational methods, processes, and tools that can be adopted by teachers to promote transversal skills such as creativity, critical thinking, decision making, and entrepreneurial skills. This book is ideal for teachers, instructional designers, educational software developers, academics, professionals, students, and researchers working at all levels in the educational field and provides valuable background information to professionals who aim to overcome traditional paradigm obstacles and meet student needs by means of innovative and disruptive methodologies.

Literature in the Secondary School Arthur N. Applebee, 1993. Presenting findings from a wide-ranging study, this book considers the present state of literature teaching in American middle and secondary schools. Probing both context and the instructional approaches, the book shows a discipline staffed by teachers better educated than their predecessors but carrying heavy class loads and isolated from current thinking in literary criticism and pedagogy. The book is based on a series of four interrelated studies: 1 a series of case studies of English programs with local reputations for excellence; 2 a study of book-length works that are required reading for high school students as well as the book-length texts required in public schools grades 7-12 and in Catholic and independent schools grades 9-12; 3 a survey of content and approaches in nationally representative samples of English programs in public, Catholic, and independent schools plus schools whose students consistently win National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE) Achievement Awards in Writing; and 4 analyses of the selections and teaching suggestions offered in widely used anthologies. Chapters of the book are: Introduction; Studying the Teaching of Literature; Conditions for the Teaching of Literature; The Curriculum as a Whole; Selections Chosen for Study; Selections Available in Literature Anthologies; Classroom Literature Instruction; Instructional Materials in Literature Anthologies; Writing and Literature; The School Library and Students Reading; and Conclusion. A description of methods and procedures for the four studies and a list of the most frequently anthologized selections by genre are attached. Contains 87 references and 90 tables/figures. RS.
