Reframing Information

Architecture Andrea Resmini, 2014-07-15 Information architecture has changed dramatically since the mid 1990s and earlier conceptions of the world and the internet being different and separate have given way to a much more complex scenario in the present day. In the post digital world that we now inhabit the digital and the physical blend easily and our activities and usage of information takes place through multiple contexts and via multiple devices and unstable emergent choreographies. Information architecture now is steadily growing into a channel or medium specific multi disciplinary framework with contributions coming from architecture urban planning design and systems thinking cognitive science new media anthropology. All these have been heavily reshaping the practice conversations about labelling websites and hierarchies are replaced by conversations about sense making place making design architecture cross media complexity embodied cognition and their application to the architecture of information spaces as places we live in in an increasingly large part of our lives. Via narratives frameworks references approaches and case studies this book explores these changes and offers a way to reconceptualize the shifting role and nature of information architecture where information permeates digital and physical space users are producers and products are increasingly becoming complex cross channel or multi channel services.

The Journey from Student to Paramedic in the UK Ambulance Service John Donaghy, Diane Waller, 2024-03-12 Drawing on extensive ethnographic research this fascinating book highlights the challenges and contradictions faced by neophyte paramedics as they transition from a classroom setting into day to day clinical work placements. Shining a spotlight on the subculture of the UK Ambulance Service as well as the paramedic profession more widely it examines critically how language cultural meanings institutionalised rules professional identity and working practices determine key behaviours within paramedic practice providing readers with insight into the profession not seen by members of the public or portrayed by media representations. The book draws on work of seminal authors and experts in the field to provide a sociological perspective on this not only challenging but also at times chaotic professional environment. Supported by fieldnotes as well as interviews with students and paramedics the book will be essential reading.
