

THE LEWIS & CLARK Expedition

TEXT BY Joy Edgar-Rosen

It was spring. The river was breaking up. Great wedges of drift and ice were seen in the sky, flying north. Out on the river the Indians hunted buffalo on the ice floes. The great boats, attempting to cross on the ice, sometimes were trapped when the ice broke up. Indians were skilful at ice hunting. The party's small boats had been frozen right all winter. Now all hands were mustered to cut them loose.

Lewis and Clark were soon to depart for almost unknown country. All winter they had been gathering information about the way west. The information needed for the west to the country of the Shoshonis in the Rocky mountains. On buffalo skin, in the sand and in skins, the Indians drew crude pictures for the Captains—the first road maps of the country's west.

FOLLOW THIS RIVER, NOT THAT ONE!

JOB NO GOOD!

They had trouble with Charbonneau. The interpreter wanted to make his own terms for going with the Captains. For a time, he withdrew from the party.

TAKE ME BACK!

But within a week, Charbonneau was begging for forgiveness. He was a Frenchman, so the Captains saying he was sorry. And he agreed to Lewis and Clark's terms.

In early March, the party began to build new small boats and canoes about five miles up river from Fort Mandan. As the days lengthened the Corps was in high spirits. There was dancing almost every night. Soon they would be starting west.

Yellowstone, or Crow, was head chief of the Minutemen. He was a fierce fighter and had not been friendly with the Americans.

Shortly before the spring departure, Crow made his peace with the Captains. They gave him a medal. They gave him some red cloth.

THE DEPARTURES

GOOD LUCK ON YOUR WAY WEST, CAPTAIN!

There were two departures from Fort Mandan April 1, 1805. One party went south to St. Louis. The other, the main group of explorers, went north and west to the Pacific. The southbound boat carried government dispatches, letters to friends, wishes for President Jefferson and the two privates, Read and Newman, authorized to be discharged.

Westward bound! The Captains now had six small canoes and two large barges. In excellent health and spirits, the Corps was far different from the ill-disciplined party that had left West River almost a year before. Everyone was eager to push on to the western mountains. Men obeyed orders. There was no discontent. All were eager for success.

TAKE NO MEDALS FROM THE BRITISH!

WE MAY BE BACK THIS WAY NEXT YEAR!

Clark's Corps

WESTWARD, GREAT DEPARTURE
