Clickers in the Classroom David S. Goldstein, Peter D. Wallis, 2023-07-03 With classroom response systems or CRSs also known as Student Response Systems Individual Response Systems or informally clickers in use in higher education for some 20 years there is now both ample research and a wealth of examples and ideas to draw on for faculty who are contemplating their use or exploring new ways to integrate them in their teaching The research demonstrates that integrated purposefully in courses the use of clickers aligns with what neuroscience tells us about the formation of memory and the development of learning In addition they elicit contributions from otherwise reticent students and enhance collaboration even in large lecture courses foster more honest responses to discussion prompts increase students engagement and satisfaction with the classroom environment and provide an instantaneous method of formative assessment This book presents a brief history of the development of CRSs and a survey of empirical research to provide a context for current best practices and then presents seven chapters providing authentic effective examples of the use of clickers across a wide range of academic disciplines demonstrating how they can be effective in helping students to recognize their misconceptions and grasp fundamental concepts Like all pedagogical interventions classroom response systems are no panacea and the experienced contributors candidly describe avoidable pitfalls while demonstrating how clickers can deepen student learning and how by providing instantaneous feedback they enable teachers to make adjustments on the fly to better address student understandings or misunderstandings The final chapter explores pros and cons of response systems that use mobile devices and smart phones and the book concludes with an annotated list of further resources such as books articles and videos

Marong, 2015-07-14 Promoting Accountability under International Law for Gross Human Rights Violations in Africa is pre eminently a study on the work and contribution of the first international judicial mechanism the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda ICTR devoted exclusively to challenging impunity for serious international crimes committed in Africa This volume is dedicated to the eminent international jurist Justice Hassan Bubacar Jallow the Tribunal's longest serving Chief Prosecutor and the first prosecutor of the United Nations Mechanism for International Criminal Tribunals. The noted scholar and practitioner contributors discuss various aspects of the law, jurisprudence and practice of the Tribunal over its twenty year existence while also drawing lessons for current and future international courts such as the International Criminal Court. Themes covered include the role of the international prosecutor, the prosecution of sexual and gender based crimes, the relationship between national and international courts, the role of other international institutions in challenging impunity and the role of African languages in international criminal trials. Given its wide ranging substantive coverage, this book will be invaluable to anyone interested in criminal justice, human rights and humanitarian law, whether in Africa or other parts of the world.

The Routledge Handbook of Financial Literacy Gianni Nicolini, Brenda J. Cude, 2021-12-30. Financial literacy and financial education are not new topics even though interest in these topics among policymakers, financial authorities and academics continues to grow. The Routledge Handbook of Financial Literacy provides a comprehensive reference work that addresses both research perspectives and practical applications to financial education. This is the first volume to summarize the milestones of research in financial literacy from multiple perspectives to offer an overview. The book is organized into six parts. The first three parts provide a conceptual framework which discusses what financial literacy is, how it should be measured and explains why it represents a relevant topic and effective tool in enhancing decision making among consumers as well as consumer protection strategies. Part IV addresses the connection between financial education and financial literacy with chapters about financial education in school settings as well as for adults. This part includes an analysis of the role of Fintech and the use of gamification in financial education. Part V is a collection of contributions that analyze financial literacy and financial education around the world with a focus on geographical areas including the U.S., South America, Western Europe, Eastern Europe, Asia and Africa. This part also considers how financial literacy should be addressed in the case of Islamic finance. The concluding part of the book examines how financial literacy is related to other possible approaches to consumer finance and consumer protection, addressing the relationships between financial literacy and behavioral economics, financial well being and financial inclusion. This volume is an indispensable reference for scholars who are new to the topic, including undergraduate and graduate students, and for experienced researchers who wish to enrich their knowledge, policymakers seeking a broader understanding and an international perspective, and practitioners who seek knowledge of best practices as well as innovative approaches.
