

Introduction

It is important to identify and evaluate the most effective forms of leadership in any business. Given the specialised nature of most firms, adapting a 'one-size-fits-all' approach is likely to manifest costly issues. Employee retention and motivation, for a profit-maximising firm, are direct resultants of the leadership style a manager adopts. In my essay, I will analyse the impact of effective leadership styles across a range of real-world examples, and consider the impact of traditional and more modern approaches towards management. By considering the viewpoints of multiple academics, I will analyse both supplementary and contrasting perspectives of leadership to broaden my findings. To this end, my essay will be robust in the scope of its coverage, and relevant in its evaluation of today's corporate environment.

Forms of Leadership

Defining Power

An effective leader, in any situation, has the ability to inspire (or at least convince) others' actions. Effective leadership in a managerial role regards the ability to use power as an influence over their employee's behaviour (Schermerhorn, Davidson, Poole, Woods, Simon, & McBarron, 2014). While 'effective' leadership presents itself as a subjective characteristic, the components that culminate effective leadership can be defined. Power regards a manager's ability to control their subordinate's actions. Given the range of operational structures we see in businesses today, a 'powerful' leader ensures the firm's visions are turned into reality. The notion of power, dependent on a business' structures and motivational theories followed, can be distinguished as either reward-based, coercive, or authoritative (legitimate). Firstly, reward power operates on the assumption that employees will respond positively to rewards. If a manager has the ability to offer (or at least portray) something as the positive benefit an employee will receive, they are said to be exercising their reward power. Conversely, coercive power is the ability to influence actions through punishment (Schermerhorn et al., 2014). Examples of punishment include threats to their employment, and verbal reprimands. Finally, legitimate power results in a leader influencing based on their authority, rather than having to implement rewards or punishments to achieve the same results. It stands to reason that the organisational position should be a sufficient enough source of power for managers. Overall, the use of power can be classified as either a positive or negative force in the business environment (Harness, Ranaweera, Karjalainen, & Jayawardhena, 2018). In addition, employees' perceptions of their managers contribute to the notion of personal power. Firstly, expert power regards the ability to "influence through special expertise" (Schermerhorn et al., 2014, p. 343). The special expertise of a manager can refer to the acumen they develop from workplace experience; contributing to their reputation as an

Leadership Studies Ronald E. Riggio, Michael Harvey, 2011-01-01 This unique cross disciplinary volume encourages a new synthesis in the vibrant field of leadership studies. Comprising reflective conversations among scholars from different disciplines, the contributors explore common ground for new research and ideas. Beginning with chapters by noted experts in fields such as psychology, education, and philosophy, the contributors present the key contributions from their disciplines. A final section provides an integration of the different disciplinary approaches. Through sustained critical interrogation and discussion, the goal is to discover to what extent leadership studies exists or can exist as a meaningful discipline. Taken as a whole, the book presents a vigorous and timely picture of the diversity of contemporary leadership studies. A must read for serious scholars and students of leadership, this accessible and insightful book will be an exemplary foundational text for understanding the breadth and reach of interdisciplinary leadership studies. Challenges and Opportunities of Educational Leadership Research and Practice Alex J. Bowers, Alan R. Shoho, Bruce G. Barnett, 2015-09-01 As the sixth volume in the International Research on School Leadership series, the contributing authors in this volume consider the history, challenges, and opportunities of the field of research and practice in educational leadership and administration in schools and districts. Ten years after the work of Firestone and Riehl (2005) and their contributing authors, our aim with the present volume was to summarize and update the work of the field and provide a space to consider the multiple futures of educational leadership in schools and districts as both challenges and opportunities. The first decade of the twenty-first century brought significant critiques, challenges, and competition to the research and practice of training leaders and administrators of schools and districts around the world. Congruently, the field experienced significant growth and change as multiple new sub-domains flourished and were founded. Thus, in this volume, we were delighted to include excellent chapters from multiple authors that considered the duality of the challenges and opportunities of the work of the field of educational leadership and administration research to date. The opportunities and challenges of new visions of leadership in traditional and non-traditional schools. The evolving state of research evidence in educational leadership and the increasing sophistication of multiple methodologies, including qualitative research, quantitative modeling, the ability to test theory, and the increasing opportunities brought on by the intersection of data research and practice. The preparation of educational leaders and the emerging trends in the professional development of school leaders. The authors of the nine chapters in the present book volume took on this challenge of confronting the duality of not only including the past as we look to the future but also the duality of the critique of the field in the midst of exciting and significant progress in our knowledge and understanding of leadership in schools. In the first section of the book, Chapters 2, 3, and 4, the authors examine the interplay of educational leadership research and theory as it relates to reform in schools, especially as it relates to serving historically underserved populations globally. In section 2, Chapters 5 and 6, the authors highlight the importance of methodological considerations in school leadership research as a means to understand theory and practice as well as providing interesting avenues that point to multiple exciting future possibilities through relying on current innovations noted within the chapters. Section 3 Chapters 7 and 8 examine the research and practice of school leadership preparation especially as it relates to university district partnerships and non traditional school settings. And in the final chapter Chapter 9 our capstone contributor provides a means to link the present volume with the past writings on these topics while also providing a lens to view the exciting possibilities and promises of the multiple futures of the field of educational leadership research and practice.

Critical Education Policy and Leadership Studies Tanya Fitzgerald, Steven J. Courtney, 2023-07-31 This edited collection is a Festschrift to Helen M Gunter a leading scholar in the field of education policy and leadership. We draw on the concept of the Festschrift as a collection of papers or chapters that recognise honour and celebrate the work and contributions of an esteemed academic. Gunter's work has opened up the field of critical education policy and leadership studies and provoked if not revitalised scholarly thinking about the origins, structures, patterns and impact of the field. Gunter's personal commitment to intellectual leadership of the field and public education resonates across all her scholarly works. The core intention of this unique collection is to recognise Gunter's scholarly contributions as an academic practitioner and public intellectual. Invited authors have been asked to reflect critically on ways in which Gunter's work and intellectual support have influenced their own research, teaching and academic engagement. In their reflections contributors not only speak to the intellectual work of Gunter but suggest how they have taken this work forward and how this has advanced the field of education as well as the production of knowledge.

Kramer, 2004-09-22 In this book some of the world's leading scholars come together to describe their thinking and research on the topic of the psychology of leadership Most of the chapters were originally presented as papers at a research conference held in 2001 at the Kellogg School of Management of Northwestern University The contributions span traditional social psychological areas as well as organizational theory examining leadership as a psychological process and as afforded by organizational constraints and opportunities The editors goal was not to focus the chapters on a single approach to the study and conceptualization of leadership but rather to display the diversity of issues that surround the topic Leadership scholars have identified a host of approaches to the study of leadership What are the personal characteristics of leaders What is the nature of the relation between leaders and followers Why do we perceive some people to be better leaders than others What are the circumstances that evoke leadership qualities in people Can leadership be taught And so on The contributions to this book examine these important questions and fall into three categories conceptions of leadership factors that influence the effectiveness of leadership and the consequences and effects of leadership on the leader All in all the chapters of this volume display part of a broad spectrum of novel and important approaches to the study of the psychology of leadership We hope that they are equally useful to those who are or would be leaders and to those who study the topic As recent events have served to remind us it is too important a topic to be ignored by psychologists leadership and organizational change for the past thirty five years taking stock of what we know identifying what we do not know and establishing how the study of the leadership of change should advance In the late seventies and early eighties as interest in managing and leading change was fuelled by the competitive threat of Asia in general and Japan in particular as perceived by western businesses and governments Burns 1978 writing in his landmark book Leadership at this time referred to an intellectual crisis The crisis of leadership today is the mediocrity or irresponsibility of so many of the men and women in power but leadership rarely rises to the full need for it The fundamental crisis underlying mediocrity is intellectual If we know all too much about our leaders we know far too little about leadership While the study of managing change has benefitted from sustained critical scrutiny particularly in the last decade it is believed that this is to have been at the expense of critical scrutiny of leading change The Leadership of Organizational Change critically reviews how the study of leading change has advanced since 1978 and the crisis of intellectual mediocrity Papers and Proceedings American Sociological Society.
