Douglas Walton presents a normative framework for identifying and evaluating ad hominem or personal attack arguments. Personal attack arguments have often proved to be so effective in election campaigns for example that even while condemning them politicians have not stopped using them. In the media in the courtroom and in everyday confrontation ad hominem arguments are easy to put forward as accusations are difficult to refute and often have an extremely powerful effect on persuading an audience. Walton gives a clear method for analyzing and evaluating cases of ad hominem arguments found in everyday argumentation. His analysis classifies the ad hominem argument into five clearly defined subtypes: abusive, direct, circumstantial, bias poisoning the well, and tu quoque. You're just as bad arguments and gives methods for evaluating each type. Each subtype is given a well defined form as a recognizable type of argument. The numerous case studies show in concrete terms many practical aspects of how to use textual evidence to identify and analyze fallacies and to evaluate argumentation as fallacious or not in particular cases.
