Military Intervention During The Clinton Administration A Critical Comparison:

Military Intervention During the Clinton Administration U.S. Army War College, 2014-10-25 This book reviews the Clinton administration's approach to military intervention by examining the Rwandan genocide crisis of 1994 and the Kosovo crisis of 1999. It seeks to answer the question of why the U.S. intervened militarily to stop ethnic cleansing in Kosovo but did not intervene to stop genocide in Rwanda. Before looking at the two cases, the book provides background discussion on U.S. national interests and a discussion of the Clinton administration's National Security Strategy formulation, citing salient points of its published strategies. After providing a background for each crisis, it applies a framework of five interrelated criteria to examine the two crises. The book concludes that four of the five interrelated areas—ideology, convictions, global systems, and policy inertia—shaped the Clinton administration's reactions to both crises. It also concludes that the mass media had little effect on the administration's response to either crisis. Military Intervention During the Clinton Administration

Douglas Carl Peifer, 2009-05 This is a compendium of case studies that seek to describe the best uses of military power, particularly airpower, in response to genocide. The writers examine recent instances of genocide in Somalia, Rwanda, and Côte d'Ivoire to draw out useful generalizations concerning the nature of genocide, international reactions to genocide, and effective responses to genocide and the possibility of genocide.

The book demonstrates the huge impact on the region of these countries. It examines the population resource and economic basis for the countries' rise, considers political, social and cultural factors and sets recent developments in a long historical context. Throughout the different development paths of the three countries are compared and contrasted and the new models for the future of the world order which they represent are analysed.
