

Marshall & Swift® Residential Cost Handbook

Your Comprehensive Source for Residential Costs

The Marshall & Swift Residential Cost Handbook by CoreLogic® is the most complete and most trusted residential valuation tool for professionals in the building, buying and selling, remodeling, insurance and planning fields. It is a wealth of information on the latest building costs throughout the United States. The handbook helps estimate the purchase of completed, newly constructed, and comparable resale properties. Most values are also presented as a percentage of the average local home value. Values are also quarterly indicators, listing 8,000 to 10,000 sq. ft. properties, local multipliers for major and minor remodeling to make them 2014 building costs. Most also include costs, i.e., "hardcore" materials, such as labor, subcontractors, and other costs, and the final completed building, including overhead and profit.

The Gold Standard of Building Cost Data

Consistent and more than 100 years of experience allowed us to build building cost data collected from 100,000+ local building professionals around the United States. It is a complete and accurate representation of the market.

Square Foot Methodology: The most commonly used and accurate method for estimating building costs. It is the most accurate method for estimating the cost of a building.

Regionalized Methodology: Costs are grouped by region to account for regional differences in building costs. This methodology is used for regionalized building costs.

Most in Place Costs: Includes all building costs, including labor, materials, and overhead. This methodology is used for estimating the cost of a building.
