Agroforestry for biodiversity and ecosystem services Donald Mlambo,Yashmita Ulman, Pedro Álvarez-Álvarez,Sangram Bhanudas Chavan,2025-06-18 Agroforestry farming systems with trees has been practised for millennia across the world but its significance as a relevant part of land use has not been formally recognized As global food demand continues to increase farmers are increasingly relying on intensive use of existing croplands and land clearing resulting in environmental degradation This degradation includes the loss of biodiversity and vital ecosystem services that support human well being However recent discourses suggest that unlocking the potential of agroforestry could offer a solution to this pressing challenge By harnessing agroforestry we have the opportunity to support biodiversity in agricultural landscapes improve agricultural productivity and livelihoods and provide numerous ecosystem services such as nutrient retention erosion control carbon sequestration pollination pest control and fire risk reduction Agroforestry encompasses a wide spectrum of practices including natural vegetation remnants Taungya hedgerows windbreaks home gardens forest farming riparian buffers fallow areas silvopasture and alley cropping By exploring these diverse agroforestry systems worldwide we can better understand the comprehensive range of ecosystem services they offer One of the greatest challenges faced by humanity in the Anthropocene is to reconcile biodiversity conservation with the demands of economic development which often involves converting forestland to other land uses Globally forest conversion and unsustainable management practices in agricultural landscapes are driving the loss of biodiversity and ecosystem services Recent research has advanced our understanding of the potential of agroforestry as a solution to environmental degradation highlighting the need to unlock its potential to achieve both local and global sustainable development goals However scientific evidence on the impacts of agroforestry on biodiversity and ecosystem services is not yet universally available To upscale agroforestry practices it is crucial to gather field based evidence that demonstrates the benefits of biodiversity conservation through agroforestry This evidence will support informed decision making by farmers advisory services and policy making bodies Therefore this issue aims to present information and evidence from various regions of the world shedding light on the diverse services provided by agroforestry and how these systems are being utilized in the current era of climate change and sustainable development Oregon
