The Eye and Vision: Anatomy

1. Anatomically, the eye is a spherical organ that is approximately 2.5 cm in diameter. It is composed of several layers, including the cornea, sclera, iris, ciliary muscles, lens, vitreous body, retina, and optic nerve.

Cornea: transparent, curved front part of the eye

Sclera: white, outer layer of the eye

Iris: colored part of the eye

Ciliary muscles: muscles that control the shape of the lens

2. The ciliary muscles are responsible for changing the shape of the lens to focus light on the retina.

Vitreous body: clear, gel-like substance

3. The lens is a biconvex structure that focuses light onto the retina. It is composed of two main parts: the nucleus and the cortex. The nucleus is the central, denser part of the lens, while the cortex is the outer, less dense layer.

4. The retina is the light-sensitive layer at the back of the eye. It contains photoreceptors (rods and cones) that convert light into electrical signals. The optic nerve carries these signals to the brain.

Optic nerve: carries visual information from the retina to the brain

5. The visual pathway starts with light entering the eye through the cornea and lens, passing through the vitreous body, and hitting the retina. The retina then sends signals to the optic nerve, which carries them to the brain.
