Neuroglia Helmut Kettenmann, Bruce R. Ransom, 2013 Neuroglia the third edition is the long awaited revision of the most highly regarded reference volume on glial cells This indispensable edition has been completely revised greatly enlarged and enhanced with four color figures throughout all in response to the tremendous amount of new information that has accumulated since the previous edition seven years ago Glial cells are without doubt the new stars in the neuroscience and neurology communities Neglected in research for years it is now evident that the brain only functions in a concerted action of all the cells namely glia and neurons Seventy one chapters comprehensively discuss virtually every aspect of normal glial cell anatomy physiology biochemistry and function and consider the central roles of these cells in neurological diseases including stroke Alzheimer disease multiple sclerosis Parkinson s disease neuropathy and psychiatric conditions More than 20 new chapters have been added to accommodate the unprecedented growth of knowledge about the basic biology of glia and the sophisticated manner in which they partner with neurons in the course of normal brain function Lavishly illustrated and meticulously edited the third edition remains the most convenient and maximally useful reference available This new edition is an essential reference for both newcomers to the field as well as established investigators Neuroglia belongs on every neuroscientist s bookshelf and will be a great asset for educators and neurological clinicians as well Sharks:

Conservation, Governance and Management Erika J. Techera, Natalie Klein, 2014-06-05 The key aim of this book is to explore the global conservation and management of sharks There has been a rapid decline in populations of many shark species while new science has emerged of the critical role they play in marine ecosystems However the authors show that conservation law and policy have been slow to develop with only a small number of iconic species being protected worldwide The increase in fishing impact primarily through shark finning and by catch has led to shark conservation receiving greater international attention in recent years The book explores our current knowledge and status of the law and science in relation to sharks with a particular focus on improving frameworks for their conservation and management Recent trends are analysed including shark finning bans that have been put in place in several countries the widening number of nations establishing shark sanctuaries and the growth of shark based tourism The efficacy of current listing processes for endangered species and fisheries regulations is also examined Tourism is explored as an alternative to fishing and the risks and impacts associated with this industry are analysed Contributors include leading authorities from universities and conservation organizations in North America Europe and Australia A common theme is to emphasise the importance of collaborative governance between various interest groups and the need for inter disciplinary research and management approaches that are necessary to address the decline in sharks Photoaffinity Labelling of the Ouabain Binding Site of Sodium-potassium-activated

Sharks and Rays of the Pacific Coast Ava Ferguson, Gregor M. Cailliet, 1990 Our natural history series brings you closer to living marine and coastal communities where you'll come face to face with some of the more interesting residents Richly illustrated with color photographs and illustrations these books make great references for amateur naturalists and students alike Discover the secrets of these elusive fishes and explore how they live and why they behave the way they do

Shark Fisheries and Trade in the Americas Debra A. Rose, 1998 New Developments in Marine Biotechnology Y. Le Gal, H.O. Halvorson, 2013-06-29 Past efforts to colonize the environment and domesticate living species coupled with scientific research have resulted in the possession but not always the real control by humans of any available terrestrial space However oceans which represent up to two thirds of the surface of the planet had not been really approached until the middle of this century As oceanographic science develops the picture of a rich diverse complex and also in many respects specific marine life is coming into view In a broad sense marine biotechnologies can be understood as the various means or techniques of managing marine living systems for the benefit of mankind The first goal we have is for marine life to provide biomass for food However today it is not certain that a significant increase of total world fisheries catches will be possible in the future There are several ways to address this First we need to generate better more complete or different uses of the biomass actually fished This is mainly a matter of upgrading fish and fish wastes Second we need to artificially grow the living species This falls within the scope of cell cultivation and of aquaculture Both approaches have to be appreciated simultaneously in terms of biology ecology and economy In both approaches profit improvements are linked to the introduction of biotechnological methods and to the use of biotechnological processes Journal of the Scientific Laboratories of Denison University Denison University, 1963 Guide to the Sharks and Rays of Southern Africa Leonard J. Contributions to Canadian Biology, 1911 Shark Utilization, Marketing and Trade Stefania Vannuccini, 1999 Sharks belong to the Chondrichthyes class together with skates rays and chimaeras and are found in a wide variety of habitats worldwide employing many biological strategies Although sharks make up only a small percentage of the world's recorded fish landings they are extremely versatile and are a valuable resource They are of primary importance in some regions of the world sustaining important fisheries in some countries Moreover they are a cheap but valuable source of protein for coastal communities dependent on subsistence fisheries Humans can utilize much of the carcass for food or other uses Sharks are exploited for their meat fins skin liver teeth cartilage and other internal organs It is not possible to utilize every shark for all these uses as the methods of preservation and preparation are often mutually exclusive and not all shark species are suitable for all applications This report details the species used and the methods of preparation for the various purposes It assembles information as well as the latest statistics available from those parts of the world where sharks are important economically as a substantial fisheries sector a contribution to human food or a valuable trading item
