REINFORCEMENT LEARNING FUNDAMENTALS - LEARNING THROUGH REWARDS AND PUNISHMENTS Dr.

Chithra K, Anirudhan Adukkathayar C, Ismail Keshta, Dr. Haewon Byeon, 2023-10-30 Reinforcement learning is a subfield within the broader domain of machine learning. The crux of the matter is in selecting the optimal course of action to maximize prospective profitability within a given set of conditions. It is utilized by various software and computers to determine the optimal course of action or action route to effectively respond to a given event. In the process of supervised learning, the training data includes the ground truth and the model is trained using the correct response. In contrast, in the context of reinforcement learning, the absence of a definitive correct answer is seen. Instead, the reinforcement agent exercises its discretion in selecting the appropriate behaviors required to successfully complete the assigned task. This observation highlights a significant distinction between the two modalities of learning. In supervised learning, the training dataset contains the solution key, enabling the model to be trained using the correct answers directly. In the context of unsupervised learning, the model is trained using erroneous or inaccurate responses. Without access to a training dataset, it is implausible for the system to acquire knowledge by any alternative means. The mathematical impossibility of the situation is evident. Reinforcement learning (RL) is a subfield within the domain of artificial intelligence (AI) that focuses on the examination and analysis of decision-making processes. The objective of this study is to ascertain the optimal approach for individuals to navigate a certain context with the aim of maximizing the potential outcomes resulting from their endeavors. The data employed in reinforcement learning (RL) is obtained through many machine learning algorithms, each of which acquires knowledge through its distinct iteration of the trial and error process. Data is not considered a constituent of the input employed in either supervised or unsupervised machine learning methodologies. Both of these machine learning algorithms are not classified as supervised. Reinforcement learning is a computational approach that involves the utilization of algorithms to acquire knowledge from previous actions, consequences, and afterwards, choose the most advantageous path of action. Following each stage, the algorithm is provided with input that aids in evaluating the appropriateness, neutrality, or inaccuracy.

Reinforcement Learning, second edition Richard S. Sutton, Andrew G. Barto, 2018-11-13 The significantly expanded and updated new edition of a widely used text on reinforcement learning, one of the most active research areas in artificial intelligence. Reinforcement learning, one of the most active research areas in artificial intelligence, is a computational approach to learning whereby an agent tries to maximize the total amount of reward it receives while interacting with a complex, uncertain environment. In Reinforcement Learning, Richard Sutton and Andrew Barto provide a clear and simple account of the field's key ideas and algorithms. This second edition has been significantly expanded and updated, presenting new topics and updating coverage of other topics. Like the first edition, this second edition focuses on core online learning algorithms, with the more mathematical material set off in shaded boxes. Part I covers as much of reinforcement learning as possible without going beyond the tabular case for which exact solutions can be found Many algorithms presented in this part are new to the second edition including UCB Expected Sarsa and Double Learning Part II extends these ideas to function approximation with new sections on such topics as artificial neural networks and the Fourier basis and offers expanded treatment of off policy learning and policy gradient methods Part III has new chapters on reinforcement learning s relationships to psychology and neuroscience as well as an updated case studies chapter including AlphaGo and AlphaGo Zero Atari game playing and IBM Watson s wagering strategy The final chapter discusses the future societal impacts of reinforcement learning Fix Your Chevrolet Bill Toboldt,1983-12 Reinforcement Learning Richard S. Sutton,Andrew G. Barto,1998 An account of key ideas and algorithms in reinforcement learning The discussion ranges from the history of the field s intellectual foundations to recent developments and applications Areas studied include reinforcement learning problems in terms of Markov decision problems and solution methods Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1972
