

POWER NAD

With competition hotting up in the budget integrated amplifier market, NAD has responded with the muscular new C352. Does its power corrupt Dominic Todd? Absolutely...

It hasn't been so easy for NAD of late. At one stage, the company pretty much had the budget audiophile amplifier market to itself. Recently though, Cambridge's Azur range has been hogging all the limelight, and stealing not only reviewer and buyer interest, but sales too. Thankfully NAD has never been one to rest upon its laurels, and it was with eager anticipation that I found myself reviewing the new C352.

Rather than producing an all-new design, NAD has sensibly chosen to evolve, albeit substantially, the existing C350. I wouldn't argue with this as I, and many others, felt the C350 to be one of the finest amplifiers around £100...

The improvements centre around four areas of the amplifier. The first is a more substantial metal chassis. Now, whilst the C352 does seem more robust than NAD amps' of old, it is still rather plasticky. In comparison to the Marantz PM7200 (£330), Rocal RA-02 (£350) and even the much cheaper Cambridge Azur 640c (£150), it does look a little low grade. Still, let's not forget that this is a NAD, and NAD tends to spend money where it matters: on the inside.

Improvement number two, then, is to the power supply. The Holmgren Toroidal PSU now supplies 80 watts per channel, which is 25% up on the old C350 (see p.65). NAD tends to be conservative with power ratings, so you can be sure that the C352 will have little to fear from rival Marantz's PM7200, 100w output. In conjunction with the extra power also comes what NAD calls "PowerDrive." In a nutshell, this circuit senses speaker impedance characteristics, and adjusts the power supply settings to best cope. It's already been used, to great effect, in the C320-BEE and C370 models.

The Class A preamp and driver remain, but feature updated semiconductors to complete the third tweak. Finally, the tone control circuit and PCB have been revised, offering shorter signal paths. The hope here is to reduce distortion, especially when the tone controls are in play. We've already considered the slightly disappointing finish but, fortunately, the feature count is far more impressive.

The standard remote control has been improved and is far more tactile than before, if not quite so weighty as an Azur's. However, as far as I'm aware, the 7 line inputs, twin recording loops, twin pre outputs, and single line input, are better than anything else in the class. As the basis for a complex system, possibly involving bi-amping at a later stage, the C352 remains a class apart from its rivals. What a shame then, that a phono stage isn't part of the package, especially as NAD does them better than most!

SOUND QUALITY

With the NAD connected up to a matching CS42 CD player and pair of KEF Q1 speakers, the listening kicked off with Tom Waits' 'Better Off Without a Wife'. The most noticeable characteristic was the highly focused vocal performance. Waits' dulcet tones had real presence and character. This came from the tight sound staging that didn't allow the vocals to shift from the central position, but also from the colour and texture imbued in his vocals. Another pleasant surprise, for what is a comparatively low budget amplifier, was the piano timbre. I've heard amps costing twice as much - or more - than the C352, that would struggle to match the resolve and realism here.

What did become clear, however, is that the C352 is not the sort of amplifier that will peel away layers of detail in a forensic manner. There was fair detail from both the audience and percussion, but you didn't get quite the insight into this that others would reveal. Nonetheless, for this price, I feel that NAD has got the balance right. Better to focus on the key elements of the music, rather than to try and reproduce too much information and end up sounding clinical or confused. I found the balance erred on the warmer side of neutral, which was reflected in the bass too. Whilst not being the deepest, with the Marantz PM7200
