

3. Marking points

3.1 Marking of lists

This applies to questions requiring a set number of responses, but for which students have provided extra responses. The general principle to be followed in such a situation is that 'right + wrong = wrong'.

Each error / contradiction negates each correct response. So, if the number of error / contradictions equals or exceeds the number of marks available for the question, no marks can be awarded.

However, responses considered to be neutral (indicated as * in example 1) are not penalised.

Example 1: What is the pH of an acidic solution?

[1 mark]

Student	Response	Marks awarded
1	green, 5	0
2	red*, 5	1
3	red*, 8	0

Example 2: Name two planets in the solar system.

[2 marks]

Student	Response	Marks awarded
1	Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune	0

3.2 Marking of extended responses (essays)

The student writes an extended response. The mark scheme for a response requires marks for each part of the question. The student's response is marked against the mark scheme for each part of the question. Each part is marked separately.

3.3 Marking procedures for calculations

Students should be encouraged to work steps of the calculation separately, usually on a separate line. This allows the student to show their working. The marks are awarded for each part of the calculation. Each part is marked separately. There is no marking for the final answer.

3.4 Interpretation of 0

Answers using the word 'no' should be given credit only if it is clear that the 'no' refers to the correct answer.
