

Martyn Pig

How does Kevin Brooks portray power relations in at least 4 key scenes in the novel Martyn Pig. Power relationships play a key role in the book Martyn Pig by Kevin Brooks. Power is a term given when a person has control over the other person and a relationship is a term given when there's an accepting between two people. When put together we can understand that the term 'power relations' is when a character in this book uses power to control a relationship.

Martyn Pig is an eleven-year-old whose life isn't really the best at the time and it's about to get worse as it takes an unforeseen twist after an accident that takes place which will leave young Martyn to lead a life full of deception, disloyalty and doubtfulness on a daily basis. I will be focusing on how Martyn's power is being fluctuated throughout the book as he confronts various characters whom of which have different relationships with Martyn.

The four scenes I will be analysing are the 'Bottle Bank' scene, the killing scene, the first confrontation between Dean and Martyn, the second confrontation between Dean and Martyn and finally the scene where Alex the Assassin gets exposed. The Bottle Bank scene illustrates William Pig's power which outlines his superiority over Martyn's vulnerability. In this scene we can see that Martyn "was in the kitchen filling a plastic bin liner with empty bottles" this shows that although Martyn's father is shown to have the power, it is Martyn the eleven-year-old kid that is looking after his father a grown man when it should be the other way.

This makes the reader feel disheartened but this gives Martyn a sense of mental power; the reason why William Pig isn't in control of Martyn the way he should be is because the alcohol intake is taking control of him which makes him lose his physical stature which is why "Dad was leaning against the doorway, smoking a cigarette, watching me through his bloodshot eyes" Bloodshot eyes give an indication to the audience that this is a result of alcohol and drug abuse which is resulting in his violent and abusive mentality he has towards Martyn, this also shows a sense of power that Martyn's father has as it instils fear into Martyn.

Moreover, Martyn's father then goes on to say "Don't you go takin' 'em to the bottle bank" Authority is shown immediately with a use of an imperative verb. Martyn's Dad then goes having a short rant about the environment by saying "Bloody environment this, bloody environment that ... if anyone wants to use my empty bottles again they'll have to pay for 'em" this sums up Mr Pig's attitude to just about everything, unconcerned. Also this tells the reader the lack of education that Mr Pig has as it was written colloquially.

Martyn on the other hand is highly intelligent, which is pointed out when in the internal
