Building for Life Stephen

R. Kellert, 2012-09-26 Sustainable design has made great strides in recent years unfortunately it still falls short of fully integrating nature into our built environment Through a groundbreaking new paradigm of restorative environmental design award winning author Stephen R Kellert proposes a new architectural model of sustainability In Building For Life Kellert examines the fundamental interconnectedness of people and nature and how the loss of this connection results in a diminished quality of life This thoughtful new work illustrates how architects and designers can use simple methods to address our innate needs for contact with nature Through the use of natural lighting ventilation and materials as well as more unexpected methodologies the use of metaphor perspective enticement and symbol architects can greatly enhance our daily lives These design techniques foster intellectual development relaxation and physical and emotional well being In the works of architects like Frank Lloyd Wright Eero Saarinen Cesar Pelli Norman Foster and Michael Hopkins Kellert sees the success of these strategies and presents models for moving forward Ultimately Kellert views our fractured relationship with nature as a design problem rather than an unavoidable aspect of modern life and he proposes many practical and creative solutions for cultivating a more rewarding experience of nature in our built environment

Outdoor Environments for People Patsy Eubanks Owens, Jayoung Koo, Yiwei Huang, 2023-09-06 Outdoor Environments for People addresses the everyday human behavior in outdoor built environments and explains how designers can learn about and incorporate their knowledge into places they help to create Bridging research and practice and drawing from disciplines such as environmental psychology cultural geography and sociology the book provides an overview of theories such as personal space territoriality privacy and place attachment that are explored in the context of outdoor environments and in particular the landscape architecture profession Authors share the impact that place design can have on individuals and communities with regard to health safety and belonging Beautifully designed and highly illustrated in full color this book presents analysis community engagement and design processes for understanding and incorporating the social and psychological influences of an environment and discusses examples of outdoor place design that skillfully respond to human factors As a textbook for landscape architecture students and a reference for practitioners it includes chapters addressing different realms of people place relationships examples of theoretical applications case studies and exercises that can be incorporated into any number of design courses Contemporary design examples organized by place type and illustrating key human factor principles provide valuable guidance and suggestions Outdoor Environments for People is a must have resource for students instructors and professionals within landscape architecture and the surrounding disciplines
