

A model Lister 6/1 diesel engine

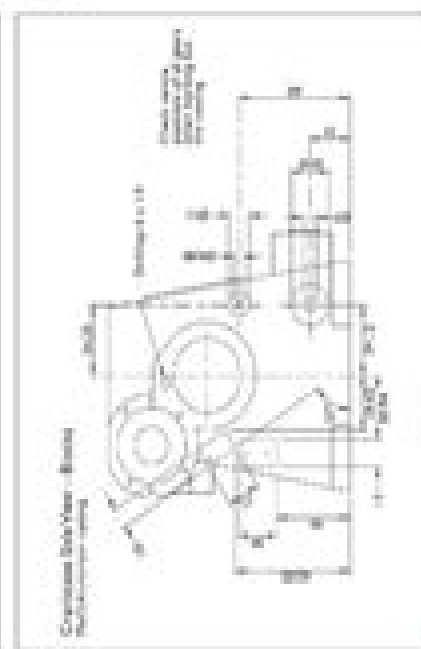

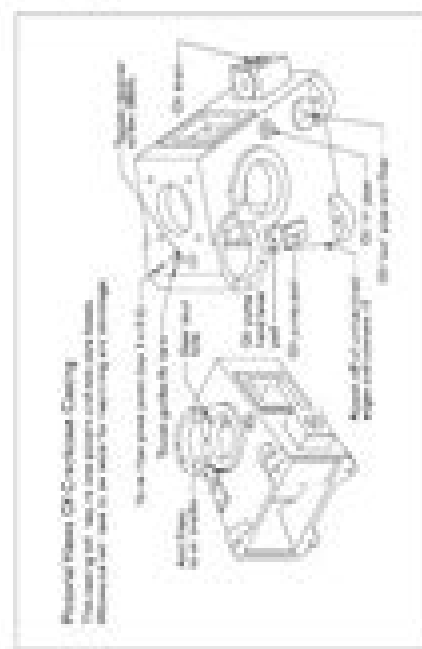

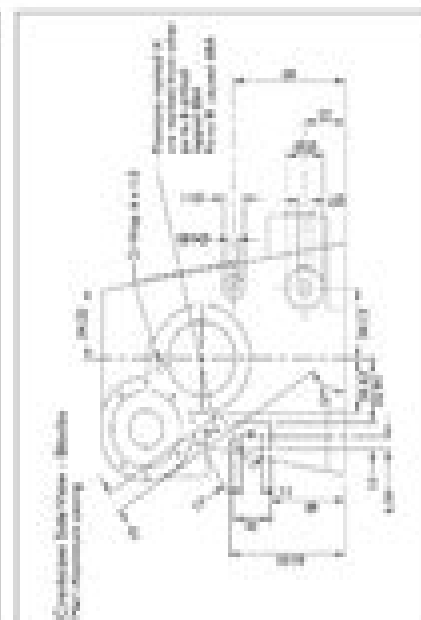

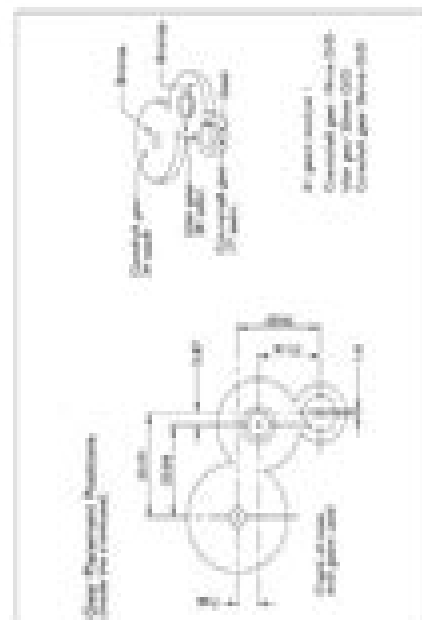

George Foster builds an impressive model.

There was that characteristic sound of a diesel as the air was blown with velocity and the needle rising a couple of degrees in the workshop. This wasn't just about engines that I had been making for years, but also about the power of the model. There is still much development work to do but there is no denying the pleasure of being able to work on a model.

The story of this model starts with the fact that in 1977 I was back in 1988/89 I was a young teacher at a school in Dorset, and had moved into a new model workshop which had ample wall space for the information that I had seen in the way of technology charts to interest students. The answer was to make it as many components as possible and use what seemed to be the best of the best. I had seen the best in the world and had developed an interest in internal combustion engines of all shapes and sizes. The Lister engine was one of the best as it was related to what I had seen in the way of technology charts to interest students. The answer was to make it as many components as
