I woke up surrounded by an oppressive fog. It obscured my vision and hindered my breathing. I couldn't remember where I was or how I had gotten there. It was eerily quiet...

Until it wasn't.

The silence shattered. All around me, I could hear mechanical screeches and squeals. The echoes and shadows of voices broke through my muted musings. My brain was having trouble processing. I felt blinded by the sudden onslaught of sensory overload and was lost in a hazy version of my own reality.

Then, suddenly, the fog started to lift, and my vision cleared. I was in a room, attached by long strings of wire to more beeping, sputtering machines than I had ever seen in my life. People dressed in white and blue and green and pink danced around the corners of my eyes. They were talking softly to one another, though I could feel the urgency of their practiced movements.

I remembered.

Reaching down to turn on the radio. Looking up at Paul. Then headlights streaming through the passenger-side window. Screaming brakes. Crunching metal. And nothing. "Paul," I managed to breathe through parched lips. The unexpected sound forced the dancers to a halt. "Paul," I said even louder, though it still couldn't have been more than a whisper.

"He's fine, son. Your friend will be fine," someone responded.

He was alive. And I was alive. And neither of us would ever be the same.

Using the American Community Survey Constance F. Citro,Panel on the Functionality and Usability of Data from the American Community Survey,Committee on National Statistics,2007 The American Community Survey ACS is a major new initiative from the U S Census Bureau designed to provide continuously updated information on the numbers and characteristics of the nation's people and housing. It replaces the long form of the decennial census. Using the American Community Survey covers the basics of how the ACS design and operations differ from the long form sample using the ACS for such applications as formula allocation of federal and state funds, transportation planning and public information and challenges in working with ACS estimates that cover periods of 12, 36 or 60 months depending on the population size of an area. This book also recommends priority areas for continued research and development by the U.S. Census Bureau to guide the evolution of the ACS and provides detailed comprehensive analysis and guidance for users in federal, state and local government agencies, academia and media.

The Interrelations of Syntax, Narrative Structure, and Prosody in a Berber Language Clive W. McClelland, 2000. This study is a systematic investigation of the links among prosody, clause structure and discourse pragmatics in four oral narratives of Tarifit, a VSO Berber language spoken in northeastern Morocco. It is a new method of empirical analysis of language utilizing a unique combination of sound analysis, statistics, grammar and story structure. Using the speech analysis program Signalize, levels of amplitude, fundamental frequency, length and speed were analyzed. In addition, factors relating to clause structure and discourse pragmatics were quantified. The results of this investigation support some but not all claims of previous researchers and reveal numerous additional interrelations not previously noted. These results suggest that prosody in relation to discourse pragmatics and clause structure may be a rich field of future linguistic endeavor. They also contribute to greater knowledge of a little known language in North Africa.

Readings in Educational Supervision Ray E. Bruce, Edith E. Grimsley, 1987. This collection of readings mostly from Educational Leadership is directed to leaders in educational settings who are responsible for curriculum development, professional growth and improving instruction. The selections are organized under eight topics: 1. history, nature and purposes of educational supervision; 2. organization for supervisory services; 3. human skills in supervision; 4. supervisory techniques for planning and managing educational programs; 5. the supervisor as facilitator in the improvement of teaching and learning; 6. the supervisor as leader in curriculum development; 7. the supervisor as a leader in staff development; and 8. the supervisor as a researcher and member of the profession. For each of these major topics, an overview introduces selected readings. The overview establishes the contribution and relationship of that topic to educational supervision and provides questions in order to direct the reader to the interaction between the articles There is also a Guide for Readers designed to aid instructors and students In the form of a matrix the guide lists nine major textbooks in the field of educational supervision and shows the intersection with the articles in this collection Resources are included in each separate article LMS Basics of Writing for the Mass Media Marlan D. Nelson, George Rhoades, 1986 Patterns in Action Robert A. Schwegler, 1988 Journal of Narrative and Life History , 1997 If You Knew Who You Were, You Could Be Who You Are Gerald M. Sturman, 1989-09 Quality Assurance in Obstetrics and Gynecology American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. Task Force on Quality Assurance, 1989 Portrait and Story Larry Cochran, 1986-03-26 Seeking to restore a holistic approach to the study of the person Professor Cochran explores and refines an innovative method of analysis based on the use of dramaturgical concepts The author s approach reflects a dissatisfaction shared by many in the field of personology with the fragmented view of the person that typically emerges from quantitative statistically based studies His own method offers alternative ways of conducting research based upon two units The first is story a completed action or drama with a beginning middle and end The other is position a way of being or an emotional or existential condition Showing these to be natural units of human experience the author demonstrates through a series of illustrative investigations how they may be applied to research Among the topics covered are the life plot or the means by which a person comes into being the meaning of significant action how actions in a person s life form a theme with variations over time and the integration of character and story The author also discusses different life themes and their significance and he tests the validity of dramatic principles as means of reality construction
