The state of Pennsylvania has a long history of providing quality education for all its citizens. The state's commitment to education is reflected in the state's constitution, which guarantees that every child has the right to a free and appropriate public education. The state's commitment to education is also reflected in the state's laws, which require that every child attend school from the age of six to the age of eighteen. The state's commitment to education is also reflected in the state's policies, which ensure that every child has access to the same quality of education. The state's commitment to education is also reflected in the state's programs, which provide additional support for students who are at risk of dropping out of school. The state's commitment to education is also reflected in the state's efforts to improve the quality of the state's schools and to ensure that every child has access to the same quality of education.
