The Hague, November 2024
Ref. No.: 2024-003

The recruitment of young perpetrators for criminal networks

This intelligence notification is based on information contributed to Europol by national law enforcement authorities. This document aims to raise awareness of the ways criminal networks exploit minors, particularly through recruitment and tasking via social media. It highlights the use of targeted language, coded messaging, and "gamification" strategies in this process.

The recruitment of minors into serious and organised crime and terrorism is not a new phenomenon; however, it has increasingly become a tactic used by criminal networks to avoid detection, capture, and prosecution. In recent years, this trend has expanded across more countries, with recruitment methods evolving and minors being tasked with violent acts such as extortion and killings.

Recent data contributed to Europol reveals that minors are now involved in over 70 % of criminal markets. These markets, which frequently exploit minors, include cybercrime and online fraud, drug trafficking and related violence, migrant smuggling, and property crime.

Focus on: drug trafficking

Recent investigations supported by Europol confirm that minors play an active role in drug trafficking, primarily in the cocaine and cannabis markets, with lesser involvement in synthetic drug and heroin networks. These criminal networks employ minors aged on average between 13 and 17 for various roles, including local street dealers, couriers, warehouse operators, drug extractors from shipping containers, and participants in "rip-off" activities (removal of drugs from criminal distribution channels). The use of minors for rip-off activities was previously rare to non-existing, but now comprises nearly 10 % of cases in some countries. These young operatives are moved across regions or cities, limiting their visibility to local law enforcement and decreasing the likelihood of arrest.

Online platforms have become instrumental in recruiting minors for roles ranging from low-level drug couriers to drug extractors and even perpetrators of violent drug-related crimes, including murder. Social media posts often glamourise drug dealing, offering minors substantial financial incentives — ranging from a few thousand euros to as much as EUR 20 000 for killings. Typically, these minors lack direct contact with higher echelons of the criminal networks, instead being recruited through criminal
