

A detailed illustration of a griffon, a mythical creature with the head and body of a lion and the wings of an eagle. The griffon is shown in profile, standing on a stone ledge and looking towards the right. Its wings are large and feathered, with a golden-brown hue. The background features a classical architectural setting with large stone arches and columns. In the distance, through the arches, a landscape with mountains and a small building with a statue on top is visible. The overall lighting is warm and dramatic, with rays of light coming from the arches.
