

A photograph of a band performing on stage. Two lead singers, a man on the left and a woman on the right, are both holding acoustic guitars and singing into microphones. The man has his arms raised. The woman is also singing. In the foreground, the silhouettes of an audience are visible, with many hands raised in the air. The background is dark and out of focus. The text "WHO YOU SAY I AM" is overlaid in large white letters.

Like A Child In The Seashore Hillsong

Paul G. Sames

Like A Child In The Seashore Hillsong:

Singing the Gospel along Scotland's North-East Coast, 1859-2009 Frances Wilkins, 2018-01-17 Following three years of ethnomusicological fieldwork on the sacred singing traditions of evangelical Christians in North East Scotland and Northern Isles coastal communities Frances Wilkins documents and analyses current singing practices in this book by placing them historically and contemporaneously within their respective faith communities In ascertaining who the singers were and why when where how and what they chose to sing the study explores a number of related questions How has sacred singing contributed to the establishment and reinforcement of individual and group identities both in the church and wider community What is the process by which specific regional repertoires and styles develop Which organisations and venues have been particularly conducive to the development of sacred singing in the community How does the subject matter of songs relate to the immediate environment of coastal inhabitants How and why has gospel singing in coastal communities changed These questions are answered with comprehensive reference to interview material fieldnotes videography and audio field recordings As one of the first pieces of ethnomusicological research into sacred music performance in Scotland this ethnography draws important parallels between practices in the North East and elsewhere in the British Isles and across the globe
