The Nature and Nurture of Learners Meryl E. Englander, 2010 Prospective and in service teachers are the intended readers of this book Teaching involves much more than dispensing knowledge Teaching is a process of arranging activities that will enable individuals to learn and behave appropriately The appropriateness of the activities depends on the degree they interact with the status of the targeted individuals Just as physicians need to know about the nature of the human body and carpenters need to know about the nature of wood teachers need to know about the nature of people that is related to learning and behavior Thereby the focus of this text is the relevant personal characteristics the intellect motivation and sense of self each of which influence learning and behavior Research findings and models within educational psychology are used to define the relevant human personal characteristics In order to arrange meaningful activities teachers strive to achieve selected objectives The text identifies four broad objectives within which specific lesson objectives can be identified The objectives themselves and more particularly the proposed activities must be oriented around the personal characteristics of the targeted learners Age grade level ethnic background and gender are insufficient indicators of learner qualifications Relevant information for learning are within individual learners as exhibited through behavior Observations are the key indicators of learner readiness to learn The text recommends that students begin now to develop skills for identifying the status of learners and classroom conditions through interviews noting various classroom behaviors and analyzing the findings by developing portfolios Small group discussions are encouraged so that students can share skills in analyzing real problems and thereby develop habits and skills for working with colleagues

Odd Perceptions Richard L. Gregory,2017-03-27 Richard Gregory was one of the major scientific thinkers of our time Originally published in 1986 here he presents essays on the rich subject of perception How we experience colours shapes sounds touches tickles tastes and smells is a mysterious and rich inquiry Wonderful as these sensations are though he argues that perception becomes really interesting when we consider how objects are identified and located in space and time as things we interact with using our intelligence to understand them Gregory s essays convey the crucial importance of the major scientists and their achievements in the study of perception but they also show us how much we can learn from our surroundings our language our times our successes and our failures Why are we so often fooled in scientific as well as everyday life
