

Flow Cytometry

Introduction to Flow Cytometry

The CELL-DYN Ruby uses flow cytometric techniques to analyze the RBC/PLT, WBC, and NOC populations. This section gives a brief introduction to the principles of flow cytometry<sup>1</sup>.

Flow cytometry is a process in which individual cells or other biological particles in a single file produced by a fluid stream are passed through a beam of light. A sensor or sensors measure, by the loss or scattering of light, the physical or chemical characteristics of the cells or particles<sup>2</sup>.

Flow cytometry enables the rapid screening of large numbers of cells and provides quantitative cell analysis at the single-cell level. The basic components of a flow cytometer include:

- A sample collector and transporter

- A flow system to focus the sample flow stream

- A light source and focusing optics

- Light collectors, signal detectors, and polarizers

- Data collection and storage

- Data display and analysis

Armenti,2004-04-17 Although there is a great deal of literature regarding drug nutrient interactions DNI's there are limited sources of up to date comprehensive information The Handbook of Drug Nutrient Interactions admirably fills this gap The editors Dr Joseph I Boullata and Dr Vincent T Armenti have a wealth of experience in this therapeutic area and have assembled a fine cadre of chapter authors who have individually contributed their high level of expertise As treatment for many diseases becomes increasingly complex with multiple drug therapies scheduled at varying times the need to identify clinically significant DNI's is an essential part of medication management This is a shared responsibility between health care professionals to interpret available data and individualize an approach to therapy that is compatible with the patient's disease state life stage and dietary intake Awareness of the significance of drug food interactions is generally lacking Although many texts contain lengthy lists of possible interactions few data are provided for the clinician to gain an understanding of the mechanism of action of the interaction and subsequently apply the information to a particular patient or group of patients For example in the management of patients with HIV/AIDS who are taking complex prescribed drug regimens herbal products and nutritional supplements many of which are affected by dietary intake careful attention to DNI's is a critical component of therapy

Clinicians need to take account of not only the well documented interactions between drugs and nutrients but also the less obvious effects on drug nutrient disposition and metabolism      System ,1926      System Arch Wilkinson Shaw,1926
