Douglas, 2025-01-01 Estuaries are defined by mixing of river and sea water thus freshwater inflow is a key driver of estuary ecosystem structure and function While there is much concern about water quality there is much less about water quantity As water is diverted for human use less is flowing to the coast which threatens estuary ecosystems Some jurisdictions are now setting inflow standards but there is no consensus on how to identify how much freshwater an estuary needs There is a climatic gradient along the northwestern Gulf of Mexico coast and estuaries vary from hydrologically positive to neutral to negative and this makes the Texas coast the ideal place to study how ecological processes vary with freshwater inflow An estuary comparison approach is used in this open access work to examine hydrology circulation salinity nutrients carbonate dissolved oxygen plankton nekton benthos and habitat dynamics and responses across varying hydrological regimes Conservation Directory 2004 National Wildlife Federation,2003 For nearly 50 years the National Wildlife Federation Conservation Directory has served as the preeminent guide to the conservation community for a broad range of audiences Island Press is proud to be a partner with the National Wildlife Federation in producing and distributing this invaluable reference The 2004 edition will be the most comprehensive listing of conservation and environmental organizations yet published with information on nearly 4 000 government agencies nongovernmental organizations and colleges and universities as well as more than 18 000 officials concerned with environmental conservation education and natural resource use and management Included are listings of U S Congress members including committees and subcommittees state provincial and federal agencies in the U S and Canada national and international governmental organizations U S Canadian and international non governmental organizations colleges and universities with conservation programs parks refuges and other protected areas conservation information resources Each entry contains detailed contact information including names addresses and telephone and fax numbers also inclu
