DHA for Optimal Health Barbara Meyer,2018-06-26 This book is a printed edition of the Special Issue DHA for Optimal Health that was published in Nutrients The effect of muscle pathogenesis on avian physiology, animal welfare, and quality of muscle as a food Wei Guo,Sandra G. Velleman,Gale M. Strasburg,2025-05-15 Over the past several decades the poultry industry has achieved huge improvements in global poultry production including with increased growth performance improved body composition higher market weight increased feed efficiency reduced production costs and increased profitability for growers These gains have resulted from a combination of intensive genetic selection tailored nutritional approaches and novel poultry management strategies However these improvements in broiler chicken and turkey production have also come with costs These costs include increased susceptibility to environmental stress increased mortality in commercial poultry flocks and muscle pathogenesis ultimately leading to deleterious effects on meat quality traits affecting appearance texture and protein functionality For example a subset of fast growing domestic turkeys develops spontaneous cardiomyopathy or round heart disease that leads to a mortality rate up to 15% at 2 to 4 weeks of age Even turkeys that survive the critical first two weeks after hatch already have damaged hearts at a prevalence of 80% to 90% which may lead to growth retardation during the grow out phase This syndrome can also occur in broiler chickens which causes major economic losses and limits the maximum profitability in the poultry industry world wide Another example is wooden breast an abnormal muscle condition resulting in a hardening of the breast muscle affecting meat texture Other examples include green muscle disease also known as deep pectoral muscle myopathy spaghetti meat and white striping All of these pathologies include the development of myopathic changes subsequently affecting meat quality leading to consumer complaints and economic losses by the processing industry There is a paucity of information on the etiologies of broiler and turkey muscle pathogenesis and their consequent effects on muscle physiology This Research Topic will highlight the mechanisms of skeletal and cardiac muscle pathogenesis in poultry that are responsible for premature bird mortality and altered quality of muscle as a food This research topic will cover the recent findings in the area of myopathies in poultry Original Research and Review papers among other article types are welcome to be submitted to this collection Fat and Skeletal Metastasis Guanwu Li,Yongsheng Chen,DongMei Wu,2022-11-03 Plant Glycobiology - A Sweet World of Glycans, Glycoproteins, Glycolipids, and Carbohydrate-Binding Proteins Els J. Seifert,Richard Strasser,2021-10-21 Advancing genomics for rare disease diagnosis and therapy development vol II Weida Tong,Tielu Shi,Zhichao Liu,Ruth Roberts,Mike Mikailov,2023-09-07 Chemicals in the Environment and Brain Development: Importance of Neuroendocrinological Approaches Fumihiko Maekawa,Kazuaki Nakamura,Shoji F. Nakayama,2017-05-11 Mounting evidence shows that increasing numbers of children are being diagnosed with neurodevelopmental disorders and it is clear that this increase cannot be explained by genetic background alone A number of studies including epidemiological studies have found an association between in utero and childhood exposure to certain chemicals such as endocrine disruptors psychoactive pharmaceuticals volatile organic chemicals persistent organic compounds and heavy metals and children's brain development Yet the mechanisms by which these chemicals impair brain development and function are not fully understood In addition little is known about how these chemicals enter and accumulate in the brain Experimental approaches are essential to understand how those harmful chemicals enter children's brain and pose discrete effects on specific brain sites These approaches include the following improvement of technologies for the detection and measurement of neuroendocrinological and behavioral changes in animal models development of analytical methods for the identification and quantification of chemicals and their metabolites in the brain development of in vitro cell line assays and imaging technologies to illustrate cellular functions In this research topic we collected articles that provide state of the art science and technologies that can help us identify environmental chemicals that influence brain development We also included articles that lead to a better understanding of the actions and dynamics of these chemicals The articles in this research topics supplied novel information about harmful endpoints of environmental chemicals The reviews demonstrated the typical and novel interactions between environmental chemicals and the developing brain We believe that these studies would lead to further understanding of neurodevelopmental disorders caused by environmental factors

The Assembly and Interactions of MreB in the Maintenance of Cell Shape in Caulobacter Crescentus

Natalie Anne Dye, 2010 This work focuses on the mechanism by which MreB contributes to the maintenance of cell shape in the gram negative alpha proteobacterium Caulobacter crescentus The gene mreB encodes a protein that resembles actin a eukaryotic cytoskeletal protein Previously it was shown that mreB is required to maintain a rod like shape and localizes to a helical pattern near the cytoplasmic membrane Here we show that MreB is associated with regions of active growth in Caulobacter as mutant strains that mislocalize MreB to the cell poles direct new growth at or near the poles We present evidence to suggest that MreB contributes to the determination of proper length width and curvature through partially distinct mechanisms The determination of proper width involves the essential proteins MreC and Pbp2 which are encoded in the mreB operon While MreB and MreC are both required to position the cell wall transpeptidase Pbp2 along the lateral sidewalls and away from midcell the two do not colocalize and each can maintain its localization in the absence of the other When MreB is mislocalized to the poles MreC and Pbp2 do not follow These data argue against the idea that MreB provides a scaffold like structure to localize enzymes that directly modify the cell wall The determination of proper curvature involves the intermediate filament like protein Crescentin We identify a putative binding site on MreB for Crescentin or other curvature mediating factors We also show that the extent to which the subcellular localization of MreB changes over the cell cycle is correlated with cell size indicating that MreB is involved in the coordination between elongation and division In addition we show that in vitro purified MreB spontaneously forms very stable polymers in the presence or absence of nucleotide These polymers are globular or amorphous and only filamentous when placed on a highly positively charged surface of Poly L lysine These in vitro data suggest that MreB is likely to be regulated at the disassembly step in the cell and that the cellular environment may influence the structure of MreB polymers Lastly we present biochemical evidence to support the existence of a disassembly factor in cytoplasmic Caulobacter extract Together our data suggest that the maintenance of the crescent rod cell shape in Caulobacter is the result of a complicated balance between MreB s dynamic subcellular localization polymeric structure and communication with cellular components
