

How to write a Lab Report for Biology

Written By: Dr. Marlee Marsh, Columbia College

General Rules:

- 1) Scientific writing is concise.
- 2) Avoid writing in first person and present tense. For example, instead of writing, "I placed 3ml of NaOH in the test tube," write "Next, 3mL of NaOH were placed in a test tube."
- 3) Always use proper spelling and grammar.
- 4) Write out numbers only at the beginning of the sentence or when you have 2 numbers side by side. (Ex 1. "Eight mL of salt solution were added..." rather than "8mL of salt solution were added") (Ex 2. "Next, five 250mL beakers..." instead of "Next, 5 250ml beakers..."
- 5) Once you have written out a scientific term once and indicated its abbreviation, it is appropriate to just use the abbreviation. (Ex. First, sodium hydroxide (NaOH)...Next, NaOH...)
- 6) When reporting a number smaller than one, always precede the decimal with a 0 (Le. 0.67 vs. .67).
- 7) Although you work with your lab partners and share data, the lab report should be written in your own words. No two students should have matching lab reports.

Specific Guidelines:

The biology lab report is split into six sections:

1. Title Page
2. Introduction
3. Materials and Methods
4. Results
5. Discussion
6. References

I. The Title Page:

The title page should include:

The Title of Your Experiment
Your name as the author
a list of your fellow experimenters (lab partners)
your instructor
the date of submission

This information should be on a page by itself and should be centered.

II. Introduction:

The introduction should include background information about the lab you performed (E.g. What do we know about this subject?). This section should include proper citations. Quotes should be avoided. The author should paraphrase the

The Impact of Rubric Use and Lab Report

Performance in Biology Students Tori Allison Hellmann, 2012 The research topic chosen is related to the use of rubrics and how using a rubric for scoring lab reports might impact student performance on lab reports I also wanted to see if rubric use could improve their knowledge of science content as well I chose this as my topic because for the past 12 years as a science teacher I have noticed inadequacies in student performance on lab reports The students seem to enjoy the lab experiments but when it comes to the lab report there are some obvious deficiencies in lab report writing skills I have also noticed that students do not seem to make connections between the labs and the science content
