to support those who care for them throughout this difficult period      Prentice Hall The Living Environment John Henry Bartsch,2007      The Diagrammatics of 'Race' Marianne Sommer,2024-07-30 This is the first book that engages with the history of diagrams in physical evolutionary and genetic anthropology Since their establishment as scientific tools for classification in the eighteenth century diagrams have been used to determine but also to deny kinship between human groups In nineteenth century craniometry they were omnipresent in attempts to standardize measurements on skulls for hierarchical categorization In particular the human family tree was central for evolutionary understandings of human diversity being used on both sides of debates about whether humans constitute different species well into the twentieth century With recent advances in ancient DNA analyses the tree diagram has become more contested than ever does human relatedness take the shape of a network Are human individual genomes mosaics made up of different ancestries Sommer examines the epistemic and political role of these visual representations in the history of race as an anthropological category How do such diagrams relate to imperial and post colonial practices and ideologies but also to liberal and humanist concerns
The Diagrammatics of Race concentrates on Western projects from the late 1700s into the present to diagrammatically define humanity subdividing and ordering it including the concomitant endeavors to acquire representative samples bones blood or DNA from all over the world Contributing to the diagrammatic turn in the humanities and social sciences it reveals connections between diagrams in anthropology and other visual traditions including in religion linguistics biology genealogy and the watershed that runs from the very roof of the planet via world rivers to marine estuaries supporting a human population of some two billion people Readers will learn how the landforms animal species and humans of this globally fascinating region are connected and understand why runoff from snow and ice in the world's tallest mountains is vital to inhabitants far downstream. The book comprises forty-five chapters organized in five parts. The first section, Landscapes, introduces the mountainous watersheds of the HKH, its weather systems, forests, and the 18 major rivers whose headwaters are here. The second part explores concepts, cultures, and religions, including ethnobiology and indigenous regimes, two thousand years of religious tradition, and the history of scientific and research expeditions. Part Three discusses policy, wildlife conservation, management, habitat, and biodiversity data, as well as the interaction of animals and humans. The fourth part examines the consequences of development and globalization, from hydrodams to roads and railroads to poaching and illegal wildlife trade. This section includes studies of animal species, including river dolphins, woodpeckers, and hornbills, langurs, snow leopards, and more. The concluding section offers perspectives and templates for conservation, sustainability, and stability in the HKH, including citizen science projects and a future challenged by climate change, growing human population, and global conservation decay. A large assemblage of field and landscape photos, combined with eye-witness accounts, presents a 50-year local and wider perspective on the HKH. Also included are advanced digital topics: data sharing, open access, metadata, web portal, databases, geographic information systems, GIS software, and machine learning and data mining concepts, all relevant to a modern scientific understanding and sustainable management of the Hindu Kush Himalaya region. This work is written for scholars, landscape ecologists, naturalists, and researchers alike, and it can be especially well suited for those readers who want to learn in a more holistic fashion about the latest conservation issues.
