

5) Study all the sources.

'Citizens in Britain suffered during the First World War'. How far do the sources in this paper support this statement? Use details of the sources and your knowledge to explain your answer.

Remember to identify the sources you use.

(12)

Candidate style answer

The sources in this paper give us a mixed view about whether or not civilians suffered in the First World War. Sources C, D, E and G support this view, whereas B and F disagree.

Source C agrees with the statement because it shows that there were serious food shortages. It talks about queues for food and even food riots. People also died of starvation. Source D backs up Source C in supporting the statement. It tells people to eat less bread. This supports the view ~~however~~ there were food shortages.

Source E also supports the statement but for a different reason. It tells us about the terrible working conditions which women working in an aircraft factory had to suffer. The firms were poisonous and their officers worked from 9.30am to 5pm in these conditions.

Source G supports the statement for another different reason. This source shows how civilians suffered and were killed as a result of air raids by Germans. It says 18 killed in an air raid on Hull.

On the other hand Source B suggests that some civilians did not suffer in the war. In Source B some civilians are enjoying nice food and entertainment, living as usual.

Source F also opposes the statement. The upper class women enjoyed her work and almost always her boss for work. Source A backs up Source F for some reason as that it shows job opportunities for women, although it is really a propaganda poster.

In conclusion, I believe that civilians did suffer in the war and so I agree with the statement. The sources which agree with the statement like Sources C and E show what happened to large numbers of people from all classes. The sources which disagree, especially B and F really only refer to upper class people.

Examiner's commentary

High level response

This is a helpful introduction. It shows that the candidate is going to take a balanced approach.

Here the candidate is doing exactly the right things. The answer refers to the sources and makes it clear that they support the statement. More importantly, the answer explains why it supports the statement, by pulling out extracts (e.g. queues for food and even food riots). It is not essential to show the links between Sources C and D but this does read well.

Again, making clear that Sources E and G support the statement for different reasons is the type of comment which takes the candidate to the higher levels. Similarly, the candidate makes the point for the sources which oppose the statement as well as reinforcing them well.

The conclusion makes valid, sensible points about the weight of judgement which the evidence can bear, thus taking the candidate to the top level.
