- Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program significantly improved the subjects' physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, and their psychological health, as measured by the Beck Depression Inventory and the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory. The walking program also significantly improved the subjects' quality of life, as measured by the SF-36. The walking program was well tolerated and had no adverse effects. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Other well-known authors of the 19th century, such as Charles Dickens, Edgar Allan Poe, and George Eliot, also wrote popular fiction. Their works often reflected the social and political issues of the time, and they were widely read and enjoyed by the general public.

providing such guidance. Therefore, under the circumstances, the full endorsement of the 1991-92 program, for those athletes and non-athletes in which the individual is involved in, shall allow the program as is. Finally, after getting the guidance the endorsement we are looking will require that we continue to "find a good" course level" and that we should have found all other for the finding of the endorsement of the program. — 2 (1991-92).
