Language Learner Autonomy Breffni O'Rourke, Lorna Carson, 2010 This volume offers a collection of essays addressing contemporary issues in foreign and second language education In particular it addresses language learner autonomy both as a theoretical construct and in relation to areas of application such as the Common European Framework of Reference CEFR the European Language Portfolio ELP teacher training Content and Language Integrated Learning CLIL and minority language provision The contributors well known researchers policy makers teachers and teacher trainers provide a multifaceted insight into an innovative and influential approach to language education David Little to whom the volume is dedicated was Associate Professor of Applied Linguistics and Head of the School of Linguistic Speech and Communication Sciences at Trinity College Dublin He is recognised worldwide as a leading proponent of the theory of language learner autonomy and has been a driving force behind many influential language education initiatives internationally The Death of the Irish Language Reg Hindley, 2012-10-12 Using a blend of statistical analysis with field survey among native Irish speakers Reg Hindley explores the reasons for the decline of the Irish language and investigates the relationships between geographical environment and language retention He puts Irish into a broader European context as a European minority language and assesses its present position and prospects Adult Minority Language Learning Colin J. Flynn, 2020-03-20

This book examines the role of affective variables in the process of learning a minority language. It presents a comprehensive account of how adult learners' attitude, motivation and identity are related to their awareness of and commitment to different dialects and varieties as target speech models. These issues are examined in the context of Irish, a minority language which does not have a standard spoken variety and where the vast majority of learners have no regular contact with native speakers. Using a mixed methods research approach, this study explores the relationships that exist between, on the one hand, learners' attitudes towards the three main traditional dialects of Irish and non-traditional second language varieties and, on the other, their motivation and self-concept as second language learners. The Irish Language Frederic Louis Otto Roehrig, 1884

The Irish Language in Northern Ireland Camille C. O'Reilly, 2016-07-27. A topical and authoritative investigation of the Irish language and identity in Northern Ireland. The phrase 'our own language' has come to symbolize the importance of the Irish language to Irish identity for many Nationalists in Northern Ireland. However, different interests compete to have their version of the meaning and importance of the Irish language accepted. This book investigates the role of the Irish language movement in the social construction of competing versions of Irish political and cultural identity in Northern Ireland, arguing that for some Nationalists the Irish language has become an alternative point of political access and expression.

A Grammar of the Irish Language Patrick Weston Joyce, 1879. The Irish Language (RLE Linguistics E: Indo-European Linguistics) John Edwards, 2014-01-10. In compiling this bibliography, the main purpose was to assemble references to published material of a sociolinguistic nature concerning the Irish language. The intent was not to cover publications treating language per se but rather to consider those dealing with language in its social context. Represented here are articles, chapters, books and pamphlets bearing upon social, historical, psychological and educational aspects of Irish, including the decline of the language, the restoration effort, the relationship of language to nationality and religion, and studies of important figures in the language movement. The Value of Foreign Language Learning Tobias

Schroedler, 2017-10-10. Based on a highly interdisciplinary theoretical framework, Tobias Schroedler provides a comprehensive picture of the value of language skills within the Irish economy. The author manages to present and merge theories from economics, business studies, sociology and applied linguistics, making this an innovative and valuable contribution to the growing field of research on the value of multilingualism and languages. The first of two datasets presented in the book provides a macroeconomic quantification of the economic performance of four different global language communities. The second dataset consists of an expert interview study on the matter. Based on the data analysis, the author derives recommendations for economically beneficial language education policy making. Ireland and the Making of Britain Benedict Fitzpatrick, 1921. The Parliamentary Debates (official Report). Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons, 1910. Contains the 4th session of the 28th Parliament through the 1st session of the 48th Parliament. The Parliamentary Debates Great Britain.
