Lord Byron and Madame de Staël Joanne Wilkes, 1999 The British poet Lord Byron and the French writer Madame de Staël both made a great impact on a Europe in the throes of the Napoleonic Wars through their personalities the versions of themselves projected in their works and their literary engagement with contemporary life However the strong links between them have never been explored in detail This pioneering study looks at the two writers personal relations from their verbal sparring in Regency social life through the friendship which developed in Switzerland after Byron left Britain in 1816 to Byron's tributes to Madame de Staël after her death It concentrates on their literary links both direct responses to each other's works and copious evidence of shared concerns Topics covered include the writers treatment of gender their grappling with the possibilities for heroic endeavour their engagement with the contrasting social and political situations in Britain France and

Marguerite Countess of Blessington, 1834 Lord Byron and the History of Desire Ian Dennis, 2009-07 This book from a perspective informed by the generative anthropology of Eric Gans and the mimetic theory of Ren Girard It reads these works for their developing awareness of the market world in which the poet lived the changing nexus of socially mediated desires but also for their modeling of attitudes and rhetorics useful for life in such a world with particular attention to Byronic irony and its purposes It examines the poetry's relationship to various claims to sacral immunity in the era and reassesses the meaning and power of Byron's politics and celebrity Review of the Life and Character of Lord Byron. [By
