Pixel Shift™ Technology: The camera's 20.1MP CMOS sensor is divided into two 10.05MP sensors. When the Pixel Shift function is activated, the camera captures two adjacent frames and shifts the sensor by half a pixel. This process is repeated four times, resulting in a total of 16 frames. The camera then combines these frames to create a single, high-resolution image with 20.1MP resolution. This technology effectively doubles the resolution of the camera's sensor, resulting in sharper images with more detail and less noise.
