understanding in telling the story of his mother's battle with cancer Ann Hood wishes she'd had more time as a caregiver to prepare herself for the loss of her daughter Andrew Solomon examines the humbling experience of returning as an adult to be cared for by his father cartoonist Stan Mack offers an illustrated piece about the humor and hell of making his way through the medical bureaucracy alongside his partner Janet Julia Alvarez writes about the competition between her and her three sisters to be the best daughter as they tend to their ailing parents An Uncertain Inheritance examines the caregiving relationship from every angle children caring for parents parents caring for children siblings spouses and close friends all looking after one another to reveal the pain intimacy and grace that take place in this meaningful connection The Best American Short Stories, 1998 Collected Stories Lorrie Moore, 2020 These humorous and poignant tales of lovers loneliness and never quite belonging delivered in her characteristically knowing wry voice confirm Lorrie Moore as a master of the short story form Self Help Like Life Birds of America and Bark her four acclaimed collections are all here and for good measure so too are a handful of stories excerpted from the novels Anagrams Who Will Run the Frog Hospital and The Gate at the Stairs But at the author's request the order of play is gloriously random I didn't want this Everyman's volume to be one that simply glued all the books together in the obvious sequential order she writes I wanted instead to let the magical alphabet set individual stories side by side in an otherwise unexpected and unchronological way so that friction or frost might occur they could jostle and rap and spark or repel It might all be like a playlist set to shuffle So a joyous new discovery for first time readers and for Moore fans a multitude of new angles from which to view her incomparable oeuvre

Masterplots II.
