Tulley,2018-04-09 In How Writing Faculty Write Christine Tulley examines the composing processes of fifteen faculty leaders in the field of rhetoric and writing revealing through in depth interviews how each scholar develops ideas conducts research drafts and revises a manuscript and pursues publication The book shows how productive writing faculty draw on their disciplinary knowledge to adopt attitudes and strategies that not only increase their chances of successful publication but also cultivate writing habits that sustain them over the course of their academic careers The diverse interviews present opportunities for students and teachers to extrapolate from the personal experience of established scholars to their own writing and professional lives Tulley illuminates a long unstudied corner of the discipline the writing habits of theorists researchers and teachers of writing Her interviewees speak candidly about overcoming difficulties in their writing processes on a daily basis using strategies for getting started and restarted avoiding writer s block finding and using small moments of time and connecting their writing processes to their teaching How Writing Faculty Write will be of significant interest to students and scholars across the spectrum graduate students entering the discipline new faculty and novice scholars thinking about their writing lives mid level and senior faculty curious about how scholars research and write historians of rhetoric and composition and metadisciplinary scholars Rhetorics of Names and Naming Star Medzerian Vanguri,2016-01-29 This volume takes up rhetorical approaches to our primarily linguistic understanding of how names work considering how theories of materiality in rhetoric enrich conceptions of the name as word or symbol and help explain the processes of name bestowal accumulation loss and theft Contributors theorize the formation modification and recontextualization of names as a result of technological and cultural change and consider the ways in which naming influences identity and affects grants power Conceding Composition Ryan Skinnell, 2016-09-01 First year composition became the most common course in American higher education not because it could fix underprepared student writers but because it has historically served significant institutional interests That is it can be conceded in multiple ways to help institutions solve political promotional and financial problems Conceding Composition is a wide ranging historical examination of composition s evolving institutional value in American higher education over the course of nearly a century Based on extensive archival research conducted at six American universities and using the specific cases of institutional mission regional accreditation and federal funding this study demonstrates that administrators and faculty have introduced reformed maintained threatened or eliminated composition as part of negotiations related to nondisciplinary institutional exigencies Viewing composition from this perspective author Ryan Skinnell raises new questions about why composition exists in the university how it exists and how teachers and scholars might productively reconceive first year composition in light of its institutional functions The book considers the rhetorical political organizational institutional and promotional options conceding composition opened up for institutions of higher education and considers what the first year course and the discipline might look like with composition s transience reimagined not as a barrier but as a consummate institutional value The Handbook for the McGraw Hill Guide Duane H.
