Signaling in the Phytomicrobiome Donald L. Smith, Valérie Gravel, Étienne Yergeau, 2017-08-10 A plant growing under field conditions is not a simple individual it is a community We now know that there is a community of microbes associated with all parts of the plant and that the root associated community is particularly large This microbial community the phytomicrobiome is complex regulated and the result of almost half a billion years of evolution Circumstances that benefit the plant generally benefit the phytomicrobiome and vice versa Members of the holobiont modulate each other's activities in part through molecular signals acting as the hormones of the holobiont The plant plus the phytomicrobiome constitute the holobiont the resulting entity that is that community The phytomicrobiome is complex well developed and well orchestrated and there is considerable potential in managing this system The use of biologicals will develop during the 21st century and play as large a role as agro chemistry did in the 20th century Biologicals can be deployed to enhance plant pathogen resistance improve plant access to nutrients and improve stress tolerance They can be used to enhance crop productivity to meet the expanding demands for plant material as food fibre and fuel They can assist crop plants in dealing with the more frequent and more extreme episodes of stress that will occur as climate change conditions continue to develop The path is clear and we have started down it there is a considerable distance remaining

the subject Communications Journalism Journalism Professions grade 8 7 Kenyatta University Media Technology and Advanced Communication course Bachelors Mass communication and Journalism language English abstract Environmental issues represent a very low proportion of all stories covered by newspapers these stories also suffer from content limitations No coverage of environmental issues in the popular media is likely to be a straight forward treatment of the facts due to many practical constraints some of which are inherent in the structure and values of modern news reporting Some of these constraints are misreporting or miscommunication low levels of journalistic training in science reporting and writing media time and space constraints and commercial pressures The objectives guiding the study are how regularly are environmental conservation stories published and why they are not published as regularly and with such prominence as other stories of political and entertainment nature A descriptive survey design will be used This involves content analysis per se primarily as a tool of data collection Purposive sampling dictated the choice of THE DAILY NATION and THE STANDARD as newspapers whose content shall be analyzed The selection of media outlets was based on popularity and the number of published copies and the rating of selected newspapers The period under analysis will be between the month of May and June Conservation and sustenance of the environment has become one of the pressing issues facing humanity today with environmental and conservation education and awareness being regarded as one of the measures of halting the conflict between human and nature According to Canadian Environmental Grantmakers Network solving today's challenging local and global environmental issues and moving society towards conservational efforts cannot rest only with experts but will require the support and active participation of an informed public in their various roles as consumers voters employers and business and community leaders Thus mass media should become an indispensable partner in global conservation and management through their various roles of not only increasing awareness on the problems and challenges towards environmental conservation and sustainability
