Characteristics of Life

READ AND HILITE THE MAIN IDEAS IN EACH PASSAGE THEN ANSWER THE QUESTIONS.

Most people feel confident that they could identify a living thing from a nonliving thing, but sometimes it's not so easy. Scientists have argued for centuries over the basic characteristics that separate life from non-life. Some of these arguments are still unresolved. Despite these arguments, there do seem to be some generally accepted characteristics common to all living things. Anything that possesses all these characteristics of life is known as an organism.

1. The scientific term for a living thing is a(n) organism

1. CONTAIN ONE OR MORE CELLS

Scientists know that all living things are organized. The smallest unit of organization of a living thing is the cell. A cell is a collection of living matter enclosed by a barrier known as the plasma membrane that separates it from its surroundings. Cells can perform all the functions we associate with life.

Cells are organized and contain specialized parts that perform particular functions. Cells are very different from each other. A single cell by itself can form an entire living organism. Organisms consisting of only a single cell are called unicellular. A bacterium or a protist like amoebas and paramecia are unicellular. However, most of the organisms you are familiar with, such as dogs and trees, are multicellular. Multicellular organisms contain hundreds, thousands, even trillions of cells or more. Multicellular organisms may have their cells organized into tissues, organs, and systems. Whether it is unicellular or multicellular, all structures and functions of an organism come together to form an orderly living system.

Functional cells are not found in nonliving matter. Structures that contain dead cells or pieces of cells are considered dead. For example, wood or cork cut from a tree is made up largely of cell walls. The cells are no longer functional.

2. All living things are organized
3. What is the simplest level at which life may exist?
a cell
4. Are all cells alike? NO
5. All cells perform various jobs or functions
6. What surrounds a cell and separates it from its environment?
plasma membrane
