Music Therapy in Geriatrics, volume II Suzanne B. Hanser, Concetta Maria Tomaino, Amy Clements-Cortes, Melissa Mercadal-Brotons, 2024-03-07 This Research Topic is the second volume of Music Therapy in Geriatrics Please find the first Edition here Demographic projections estimate that by 2050 the number of people aged 65 and older in the world will soar to 1.5 billion approximately one third of the total population Medical and technological advances have certainly contributed to enhanced longevity However with advanced age there is a concomitant elevation in the prevalence of chronic diseases The Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion in the U S found that in 2012 60% of older adults reported at least two of the following conditions Cancer heart disease emphysema or chronic bronchitis stroke

diabetes mellitus and Alzheimer's disease. These diagnoses carry the extensive costs and burdens of serious illnesses and also mean that family caregivers of loved ones with these conditions experience significant challenges placing them at extreme risk for a variety of stress-related illnesses and afflictions and accounting for high rates of morbidity and mortality. Being Autistic is Not a Behavior Problem Daniel B. LeGoff, 2023-04-15

Applied behavior analysis (ABA) has become a widely used form of therapy for autistic children without its theories and methods being well understood. This critical analysis of the theories and research on which ABA bases its claim to being an evidence-based treatment is a must read for everyone who has a stake in the lives of autistic individuals. This book reviews the literature which shows that ABA is not based on scientific research and that practitioners of ABA are not required to be trained in child psychology, pediatrics, child development, education, family therapy, language development, or scientific research. ABA is not based on any form of developmental science but primarily on the works of B. F. Skinner whose ideas were first published over seventy years ago. This philosophical viewpoint, radical behaviorism, holds that individual experiences are irrelevant to behavior change because the determining factors of our actions are in the environment: the rewards and punishments that result from those actions. This in-depth analysis of the theories and research of ABA leads to the conclusion that ABA is not an applied science nor does it promote values consistent with current models of child development and education. Other promising methods based on modern science, including parent-directed early infancy pre-emptive strategies and peer-based LEGO Clubs, also discussed here, are often overshadowed by the media coverage and marketing strategies of ABA-based autism services despite these messages being overstated and misleading. Simply put, the public trust and investment in ABA services needs to be reviewed in greater detail and with greater skepticism. The pseudoscientific concepts described by behavior analysts sound convincing to many but upon closer examination amount to little more than what most educators and parents typically do already and at the same time involve costly and invasive services with little or no evidence of meaningful benefit. Some natural strategies such as peer mentoring and caregiver training do help autistic children and their families to adapt to mainstream settings; the persistent promise of evidence-based autism treatment has generated an expanding market for ABA services which actually interferes with typical social development. Modern views of child development, social and cultural adaptability, play, and education emphasize integration of individuals and their sociocultural environments. Less costly, proactive and non-invasive approaches to improving social adaptability and quality of life for autistic children and their caregivers are currently available but unlike ABA-based services they are not widely promoted in the public media or offered directly to families by thousands of newly certified providers. A science-based and holistic understanding of the life experiences of autistic individuals recognizes the importance of sociocultural adjustment and long-term quality of life, not behavioral compliance in adult-controlled settings even when those settings are described as naturalistic. Radical behaviorism was not and will never be compatible with developmental models which view development as a reciprocal and dynamic synergistic process, not the outcome of a successful behavior plan It is important for those who care about diversity in society to promote the creative contributions of individuals with diverse life experiences and to stop thinking about being different as a behavior problem

Instructor's Manual to Accompany Psych M/H/ Nursing Steve Johnson,Suzanne Doscher,1993-03 A path to wellness in the educational and health systems Lynn Preston,Wanda van der Merwe,2023-11-30 The Six Bricks initiative is a teaching and learning method that encourages focused engagement in the classroom by all learners from the foundation phase to adulthood By using six simple colourful DUPLO bricks an element of play is introduced into a situation that inevitably leads to all individuals focusing and interacting This is one of the major contributions to all teaching and learning disciplines and promotes the audience to learn with enjoyment enthusiasm and concentration Along with this communication is promoted sparking unimaginable creativity and creation This book provides the reader with an alternative focus to the original educational application of the Six Bricks activities This Six Bricks initiative focuses on the therapeutic application and processes in communities schools and within individuals themselves As each author has had an intimate connection with Six Bricks initiative they are all more than qualified to provide their autoethnographic reflections on this initiative which holds so much promise and excitement for learning and teaching Therefore each author s contributions were original and personalised providing a new field in the avenues of research in the South African context as South Africa does not have as yet much research on this topic The methodology used in this qualitative research study was primarily from each author s perspective thus their self reflection and anecdotal personal experiences form the core of these chapters Therefore this autoethnographic is a self reflective form of writing which involves self observation and reflective investigation in the context of ethnographic fieldwork and writing Nursing Diagnoses and Process in Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing Gertrude K.
