Variations of the Hero's Journey in Contemporary British, French and Australian Picture Books about the Great War Martin C. Kerby, Denise Burkhard, Alison Bedford, Marion Gymnich, Margaret M. Baguley, 2025-09-30 This book is grounded in the belief that every nation had its own Great War and that children's picture books are an important barometer of each country's national approach To explore the depiction of the Great War in modern Australian British and French children's picture books where this historical event is reimagined in different ways as a futile conflict as a painful victory and as part of one country's founding mythology this book uses the concept of the hero's journey as an underlying framework It claims that this monomythic pattern as developed by Joseph Campbell and modified by Christopher Vogler not only informs all picture books selected for this project but can also be used to highlight the extent to which modern children's picture book authors and illustrators conform to their respective nation's cultural memory It further maintains that the specific historical context of the Great War in these children's picture books can be used to identify a variant of the hero's journey the ordinary soldier's journey This analysis of children's picture books about the Great War through the lens of Campbell's hero's journey will be of interest to both students and researchers in the fields of children's literature literary theory history cultural studies and education

Bottersnikes and Other Lost Things Juliet O'Connor, 2009 Lazy Bottersnikes in outback rubbish tips Sir Pronoun's dilemma about standing in Miss Noun's place and the story of how Jack built a house a hut or a shack are all to be found in this treasury of Australian children's books This book illuminates the icons of Australian children's literature from Gibbs and Outhwaite to Shaun Tan

Re-visioning Historical Fiction for Young Readers Kim Wilson, 2011-06-15 This study is concerned with how readers are positioned to interpret the past in historical fiction for children and young adults Looking at literature published within the last thirty to forty years Wilson identifies and explores a prevalent trend for re-visioning and rewriting the past according to modern social and political ideological assumptions Fiction within this genre while concerned with the past at the level of content is additionally concerned with present views of that historical past because of the future to which it is moving Specific areas of discussion include the identification of a new sub genre Living history fiction stories of Joan of Arc historical fiction featuring agentic females the very popular Scholastic Press historical journal series fictions of war and historical fiction featuring multicultural discourses Wilson observes specific traits in historical fiction written for children most notably how the notion of positive progress into the future is nuanced differently in this literature in which the concept of progress from the past is inextricably linked to the protagonist s potential for agency and the realization of subjectivity The genre consistently manifests a concern with identity construction that in turn informs and influences how a metanarrative of positive progress is played out This book engages in a discussion of the functionality of the past within the genre and offers an interpretative frame for the sifting out of the present from the past in historical fiction for young readers
