

Gas mileage problem

- Computing the gas mileage for a car each time it gets filled.
  - Need a set of simple instructions that when followed will correctly compute the gas mileage.
  - The individual to implement the instructions is very simple minded (computer).
  - The gas mileage is the number of kilometers (kms) traveled divided by the number of liters of gas used. Need to determine the number of kms traveled since the last fill-up, and the number of liters used during this period.
