Incumbent Inertia in Light of Disruptive Change in the Airline Industry: Causal Factors and Top Management Moderators Oliver Viellechner, 2010-08-01 Oliver Viellechner addresses the response behavior of incumbent firms when facing discontinuous change by innovative business models. Almost always this entails a problem of inertia, i.e. the sluggishness of incumbent response due to insecurity in deciding on an adequate response strategy. Viellechner investigates disruptive change in the European airline industry during the 1990s when low cost airlines severely challenged established carriers. By conducting four case studies he identifies new causes of inertia and reveals the role of top management teams in improving incumbent firms responsiveness. Viellechner's new book is relevant to both researchers and managers. It links concepts of strategy, organizational and psychological research and sheds light on the new competitive structure of an industry which has been repeatedly challenged by entrants and external shocks.

Risk Management Michael Frenkel, Ulrich Hommel, Markus Rudolf, 2005-12-06. Dealing with all aspects of risk management that have undergone significant innovation in recent years, this book aims at being a reference work in its field. Different to other books on the topic it addresses the challenges and opportunities facing the different risk management types in banks, insurance companies and the corporate sector. Due to the rising volatility in the financial markets as well as political and operational risks affecting the business sector in general, capital adequacy rules are equally important for non-financial companies. For the banking sector the book emphasizes the modifications implied by the Basel II proposal. The volume has been written for academics as well as practitioners in particular finance specialists. It is unique in bringing together such a wide array of experts and correspondingly offers a complete coverage of recent developments in risk management.

Innovation in Commoditized Service Industries Maximilian Rothkopf, 2009. The passenger airline industry is a prominent service industry that is becoming increasingly commoditized. As little empirical work in this field exists, this study contributes to research by exploring how passenger airlines leverage innovation in such market conditions from a strategic and organizational view. Comprehensive case studies of a sample of eight passenger airlines constitute the empirical basis. The analysis detects patterns of innovations and draws conclusions on the strategic innovation behavior in the airline industry. The study proposes an organizational concept and a strategic approach for airlines to innovate in an increasingly commoditized market.

Life After Privatization Raj S. Chari, 2015. Life After Privatization offers a refreshing and original theoretical conceptualization of what happened to state-owned enterprises after they were privatized from the late 1970s onwards. Some privatized firms have become today's European and global giants. Alphas merging with or acquiring other firms, whereas other firms, Betas, have been taken over by Alphas or other sectoral leaders The book raises questions such as which privatized firms in the airline automobile and the electricity sectors in the UK France Germany Italy and Spain are Alphas and Betas today And why Building on a variety of themes from both Political Science and Business Studies it considers a comprehensive set of explanations both internal and external to the firm to analyse why a firm may become an Alpha or a Beta The evidence shows that while internal factors are important the more external political factors are necessary and sufficient to explain why a firm becomes an Alpha or a Beta This includes the impact of liberalization the roles of states and the actions of regulators that are lobbied by firms Based on exhaustive evidence Life After Privatization concludes with a novel inductive theory which offers a significant step forward for social science scholars and practitioners understanding of the politics businesses face in global markets American Justice Laurence E.
