and elite interviews to help reconstruct the processes and augments her reconstruction with a content analysis of Conference of the Parties speeches by presidents and country delegates The book complies with convention in the field by arguing that systemic national and individual level factors simultaneously impact foreign policy decisions but makes the additional claim that role theory most accurately accounts for relationships between variables Environmental Politics and Foreign Policy Decision Making in Latin America considers a variety of factors on individual national and international levels of analysis and show that the foreign policy decisions are best viewed through the prism of role theory The book also draws conclusions about the value of role theory in general and about environmental foreign policy decisions in developing countries which will be of value to both policy makers and academics
