Environmental and Natural Resource Economics Jonathan M. Harris, Brian Roach, 2017-06-26 Environmental issues are of fundamental importance and a broad approach to understanding the relationship of the human economy and the natural world is essential. In a rapidly changing policy and scientific context, this new edition of Environmental and Natural Resource Economics reflects an updated perspective on modern environmental topics. Now in its fourth edition, this book includes new material on climate change, the cost competitiveness of renewable energy, global environmental trends, and sustainable economies. The text provides a balanced treatment of both standard environmental economics and ecological economics based on the belief that these two approaches are complementary. Several chapters focus on the core concepts of environmental economics, including the theory of externalities, the management of public goods, the allocation of resources across time, environmental valuation, and cost-benefit analysis. Material on ecological economics includes such topics as macroeconomic scale, entropy, and green national accounting. Topical chapters focus on energy, climate change, water resources, international trade, forests, fisheries, and agriculture, with an emphasis on designing effective policies to promote sustainability and a green economy. Harris and Roach's premise is that a pluralistic approach is essential to understand the complex nexus between the economy and the environment. This perspective, combined with its emphasis on real-world policies, is particularly appealing to both instructors and students. This is the ideal text for classes on environmental, natural resource, and ecological economics. The book's companion website is available at <http://www.bu.edu/eci/education/materials/textbooks/environmental-and-natural-resource-economics>

Ethics and Values Ismail Serageldin, Joan Martin-Brown, 1998 This report is the proceedings of the Fifth Annual World Bank Conference on Environmentally and Socially Sustainable Development entitled Partnerships for Global Ecosystem Management: Science, Economics, and Law. An additional event comprising Part One of this volume was held to consider values, ethics, and ecosystem issues from a global perspective. The presenters considered the historic influence of values and ethics in the development of societies, reflected on the role of values and ethics globally, addressed the relationship of values and ethics to justice, and examined how the valuing of life locally and the local consequences of global conditions can deny justice. Part Two comprises the proceedings of the Forum on Human Settlements, Human Solidarity, and Global Ecosystems Conservation. The panelists spoke and then participated with the audience in a plenary conversation concerning the issues that link the requirements of human settlements, viable communities, and healthy and diverse ecosystems.
