Global Crisis and Restructuring Theory, analysis, and the case of Greece Charis Vlahos, Nikolaos Deniozos, Dimos Chatzinikolaou, 2019-07-30 This book examines the global restructuring since its appearance from the late 2000s to the present It tries to describe and explore the fundamental dimensions of the phenomenon of the current crisis and repositioning of the global socioeconomic system by following an analytical perspective that exceeds a conjunctural perspective It counter proposes a view of examining the contemporary historical configurations of globalization dynamics in structural and evolutionary terms Finally it considers that a valid perception of the current global restructuring requires the simultaneous co-examination of adaptation innovation and change management of the partial socioeconomic organizations sectors of economic activity and overall socioeconomic systems at all the organically linked levels of space local national international and global This book includes the following chapters that approach the phenomenon of global restructuring from converging perspectives 1 An evolutionary approach to the global crisis This chapter focuses on the structural and evolutionary examination of the current global crisis and restructuring of the global socioeconomic system It supports in terms of methodology that every global crisis analysis must perceive the historical and evolutionary character of the dynamics of global socio economic space from a unifying perspective It suggests that all the dynamic dimensions in the world s configuration economic technological social and geopolitical should be examined together in their dense dialectic co adaptation and co evolution The multi faceted crises and adjustments inside every socioeconomic system are both the products and the producers of globalization s overall trajectory in a co evolutionary course while contemporary capitalism respectively intensifies the dialectic reproduction of the global interdependence unceasingly This crisis condition therefore is sustained nourished and reproduced by the absence of a new wave of innovations throughout all the levels of socioeconomic activity and it requires the installation and assimilation of new effective change management mechanisms in order for any socioeconomic system to escape from it Arguably the challenge of building a new global developmental trajectory engages with all the levels of analysis and intervention the individual and the collective the material and the symbolic the national and the local the social and the economic the microeconomic the meso economic and the macroeconomic the cultural and the political The only sustainable way out of the global crisis as a result needs a progressive adaptation to new evolutionary thinking to perceive the global crisis dynamics

2 The current global socio economic crisis and restructuring from a conjunctural to a structural and evolutionary perspective The current global socio economic crisis and restructuring reshape the terms of the study of the global dynamics as a whole A new generation of interdisciplinary socio economic research on the matter in question seems to be progressively emerging in international literature Against this background any attempt to interpret the partial socio economic phenomena which relate to the crisis and the attempt to restructure globalization can only be inadequate and ineffective since it fails to adequately approach the current dynamics of globalization in synthetic and holistic terms In this direction new interpretative approaches seem to intensify the need for conceptual syntheses between the different fields of socio economic sciences in an increasingly unifying perspective by extensively borrowing directly and indirectly methods and theoretical lenses derived from systems science chaos theory and evolutionary economics In the depth of this methodological rearrangement according to the position put forward in this article it is crucial that an effort is made to move from a conjunctural to a structural perception of the crisis Ultimately the great challenge for the field of study of global dynamics nowadays is the transition from the methodological principles of the traditional mechanistic interpretative method to a coherent and integrated evolutionary socio economic perspective

3 Global crisis innovation and change management The crisis of capitalism is not of course an unprecedented discourse in the evolution of economics and the investigation of economic realities In the Neo Schumpeterian approach crises constitute necessary evolutionary steps intrinsically linked with breaking moments and change However what makes the current crisis different and subversive is its ever increasing structural complexity and evolutionary dialectic substance The mixing of cooperation and competition on an organizational and macro economic level reproduces on a global scale the need for a reconsideration of underlying economic regulation mechanisms The crisis tends to undermine and rapidly destroy the mechanistic relations and structures of all kinds and dimensions that have managed to provide profitability and effectiveness over recent years In this context the search for strategic innovation constant organizational renewal and the diffusion of production oriented at high technological expertise seem to progressively become the critical synthetic components for building a new development model This chapter focuses on the introduction of a three tier question which could be put forward as follows First it asks what the current global restructuring crisis is and what would be a new growth model that would lead to the exit of it on a global scale Second it addresses the issue of the required innovation mechanisms for a new model of inter spatial restructuring and development Finally it analyzes why this new innovative direction is a prerequisite for building new types of effective change management mechanisms The starting point of this approach is the position that any fragmented approach in the partial aspects of the triangle of global crisis innovation and change management is now analytically misguided and practically powerless Only an effort to systemically and evolutionarily understand the phenomenon in its continuous dialectic structure is now a sufficient condition for outlining the future development path of globalization at all levels of action

4 Structuring an anti crisis economic policy The Greek experience

The objective of this study is to clarify the prevailing vague and sometimes misguided understanding regarding the articulation of economic policy especially in the context of socioeconomic systems in structural crisis The distortions of the economic policy keep reproducing and usually spreading because of three disorientating conceptual sources a the view of economic policy supposedly as a de ideologized construction or as a de technicalized voluntarism b the view of economic policy supposedly as a de strategized synthesis c the view of economic policy as a supposedly automatic ungraded and timeless procedure For a socioeconomic system to exit from its crisis the interruption of this vicious circle of misconceptions is a prerequisite towards the trajectory of a virtuous circle of understanding the meaning of the economic policy validly

5 A new approach of local development in crisis conditions

Adopting a new local development policy to foster the local business ecosystems in Greece The competitiveness of the Greek economy evolves both in the present crisis and later on according to the dynamic micro level specific environments and transformations This evolution depends on the SME s abilities to claim a sustainable role in the new competitive global environment which is characterized by a continuous reshaping dynamic Respectively the goal of achieving development in the local scale becomes vital This chapter attempts to define a new framework by proposing a new business ecosystems approach and policy focusing on the implementation of a method for strengthening the SME s physiology This method proposes the construction of systematic knowledge and innovation creation and diffusion mechanisms on a local scale the Local Development and Innovation Institutes LDI s Subsequently this chapter analyzes regional data in Greece in order to highlight the most affected by the crisis region and to experimentally establish the Local Development and Innovation Institutes In conclusion this book proposes a new perspective of understanding the global dynamics and moves towards a repositioned perception of the phenomenon of global crisis and restructuring in structural and evolutionary terms Nowadays according to this analytical proposition organic and transversal innovations and the prerequisite change management mechanisms pose the central development question for the sustainable exit of the global crisis Moreover it seems that for socioeconomic systems in a structural crisis such as the Greek system a conjunctural perspective to confront the crisis prevails with insufficient results The structuration of economic policy in Greece until now reflects this methodological and interventional inefficiency in constructing anti crisis paths To rupture the vicious cycle of misunderstandings in economic policy formation and implementation and moving towards a new virtuous cycle of viable and long term development an evolutionary and historical understanding seems a prerequisite not only for Greece but also for other socioeconomic systems at a similar level of development Finally this continuous reshaping process of the global environment requires from all the agents of action new adaptation mechanisms The manner that local and national systems manage to achieve innovation and change management is critical and therefore policy initiatives such as the Local Development and Innovation Institutes that focus on fostering local innovation seem essential for constructing sustainable developmental trajectories

New Globalization Dynamics Charis Vlado ,2019-12-15 We are experiencing a phase of profound restructuring of globalization nowadays manifested through a wide variety of crisis symptoms articulated at the same time upon the economic political social and environmental spheres Everything shows that the movements of the world's tectonic plates are re shaping the existing geo economic and geopolitical balances on the planet drastically causing new challenges to emerge as well as new opportunities and threats for all stakeholders and participants in the global socioeconomic system Therefore the current global crisis and restructuring are taking shape within a precarious state of affairs In virtually every corner of the globe and an expanding number of cases and situations both directly and visibly both indirectly and subversively old problems seem to return and become more challenging than yesterday At the same time new socioeconomic issues emerge and spread rapidly without making it possible to find and implement effective sustainable and generalized long term solutions on a global scale The current global crisis seems to be at the same time the period of the definitive overthrow of many yesterday's certainties but also of the profound reorientation of the global system as a whole It is after all the period of the death agony of the old balance of the previous phase of globalization and at the same time the phase of escalating efforts for a new world architecture to be born stabilized and imposed We are therefore in the search for new globalization Because we can eventually overcome the current phase of global crisis only when the new is sustainably installed consolidate and prevail by opening up a new era of overall balance sufficient stability and reasonable certainty on a global scale This volume which is a collection of published articles by the Stra Tech Man Lab research team studies some of the fundamental aspects that concern the structuring restructuring of the current phase of globalization in what we call new globalization The following chapters search to define and interpret some critical characteristics that help to understand how the structures of new globalization are emerging and taking place in our days to explore some of their critical evolutionary milestones and to clarify how to approach them analytically in the current phase of crisis and restructuring
