

A detailed illustration of a griffon, a mythical creature with the head and body of a lion and the wings of an eagle. The griffon is shown in profile, standing on a stone ledge and looking towards the right. Its wings are large and feathered, with a golden-brown hue. The background features a classical architectural setting with large stone arches and columns. In the distance, through the arches, a bright light source creates a dramatic lens flare effect. On a higher level of the building, another statue is visible, depicting a creature with antlers. The overall atmosphere is one of grandeur and mystery.
