Special Senses Stations

Introduction: You are currently surrounded with sensory information changing the environment and your sensory system. "Senses" are types of sensory systems that provide "special" sensory information to the brain. Most of our senses are located in the head, but some are located in other parts of the body. The five special senses are: vision, hearing, taste, smell, and touch. Each sense has a specific organ that receives the information and sends it to the brain. The brain then interprets the information and tells the body what to do. The special senses are: vision, hearing, taste, smell, and touch. Each sense has a specific organ that receives the information and sends it to the brain. The brain then interprets the information and tells the body what to do.

Station #1: Vision - How do we see?

- What part of the eye is responsible for seeing? (The eye itself)

Station #2: Anatomy of the Eye

- What are the parts of the eye? (Cornea, iris, pupil, lens, retina, optic nerve)

Structure	Function of the Eye
Cornea	Refracts light entering the eye
Iris	Controls the amount of light entering the eye
Pupil	Opening in the iris that allows light to pass through
Lens	Refracts light and focuses it on the retina
Retina	Receives light and sends signals to the brain
Optic Nerve	Carries signals from the retina to the brain

BLIND SPOT

Do you know what a blind spot is? It's a place on the retina where the optic nerve leaves the eye. There are no photoreceptors there, so you can't see. This is how we can find it.

"ANATOMY OF THE TONGUE"

The tongue is a muscular organ in the mouth. It is used for tasting, swallowing, and speaking. It is also used for touching and feeling. The tongue is made of muscle and is covered with small bumps called papillae. The papillae are covered with taste buds. The taste buds are the organs that allow us to taste. There are four types of taste buds: sweet, salty, sour, and bitter. Each type of taste bud is located in a different part of the tongue. The taste buds are connected to the brain by the taste nerve. The brain then interprets the information and tells the body what to do.

TASTE & SMELL

How to find it:
