L'homme Et La Terre Livre I

François-René vicomte de
Chateaubriand

L'homme Et La Terre Livre I:

, L'Homme Et La Terre Élisée Reclus, 2016-10-30 Les continents et les les qui surgirent des profondeurs de la mer et l'Océan lui-même avec ses golfes les lacs et les fleuves toutes les individualités géographiques de la Terre en leur variété infinie de nature de phénomènes et d'aspect portent les marques du travail incessant des forces toujours l'œuvre pour les modifier. À son tour chacune de ces formes terrestres est devenue dès son apparition et continue d'être dans tout le cours de son existence la cause secondaire des changements qui se produisent dans la vie des êtres de la Terre. Une histoire infinie par la suite des vicissitudes s'est ainsi déroulée et se déroule sous l'influence des deux milieux céleste et terrestre pour tous les groupes d'organismes végétaux et animaux que font germer la mer et le sol nourricier. Quand l'homme naquit après le cycle immense d'autres espèces son développement se trouvait déjà projeté dans l'avenir par la forme et le relief des contrées dans lesquelles ses ancêtres animaux avaient vécu. Vue de haut dans ses rapports avec l'Homme la Géographie n'est autre chose que l'Histoire dans l'espace de même que l'Histoire est la Géographie dans le temps. Herder parlant de la physiologie ne nous a-t-il pas déjà dit qu'elle est l'anatomie agissante. Ne peut-on dire également que l'Homme est la Nature prenant conscience d'elle-même.
