La Petite Maison Version:

Seducing the Eighteenth-Century French Reader Paul J. Young, 2016-12-05 As he demonstrates that narratives of seduction function as a master plot for French literature in the eighteenth century Paul Young argues that the prevalence of this trope was a reaction to a dominant cultural discourse that coded the novel and the new practice of solitary reading as dangerous seductive practices Situating his study in the context of paintings educational manuals and criticism that caution against the act of reading Young considers both canonical and lesser known works by authors that include Rousseau Sade Bastide Laclos Crillon and the writers of two widely read libertine novels How these authors responded to a cultural climate that viewed literature and especially the novel as seductive sheds light on the perils and pleasures of authorship the ways in which texts interact with the larger cultural discourse and what eighteenth century texts tell us about the dangers of reading or writing Ultimately Young argues the seduction not in the text but by the text raises questions about the nature of pleasure in eighteenth century French literature and culture

The Little House Jean-Francois de Bastide, 1996 Exemplary of an 18th century literary genre that combined fictional narrative with didactic observations on art and architecture The Little House tells the tale of a seduction in a maison de plaisance outside of Paris The house itself its architecture gardens artwork and furnishings is the central element of a story in which an impressionable woman mistakes good taste for good intentions with unforeseen results The Little House long an underground classic among architectural historians and theorists has never before been published in English Anthony Vidler's insightful preface and Rodolphe el Khoury's informative introduction notes and careful translation make the novella more accessible to the contemporary reader
