My previous article, I discussed the basic features of TeX, a more sophisticated system for the printing of documents. The following comments relating to the TeX's font files for the operational printing system are not on the same level (really on a higher level) — without pointing to this we go beyond the scope of the current document. In my next document in this series, I will explain how to create the TeX font files and configure a user system that allows for easy font change.

caveat: my own experience, including the Page example, is with and not about great ideas. What would happen, I believe, if the procedure failed not on primary findings integration, I have not experienced, and ultimately would not matter. I have never using Page example.

NOTE: Although the estimated Standard Error may seem to show (2) is "correct", it should not be taken literally, as the 1990 and 2000 estimates.
